PREFACE.

The present volume is an attempt to be of service to those who are beginning the study of our language, or who desire to acquaint themselves with a few specimens of our earliest literature. It has seemed to the author that there were two extremes to be avoided in its compilation - the treatment of Old English as though it consisted of wholly isolated phenomena, and the procedure upon a virtual assumption that the student was already acquainted with the cognate Germanic tongues and with the problems and methods of comparative philology. The former treatment robs the study of its significance and value, which, like that of most other subjects, is found in its relations; the latter repels and confounds the student at a stage when he is most in need of encouragement and attraction.

How well the author has succeeded must be left to the judgment of others - the masters whom he follows at a distance, and the students whose interests he has constantly borne in mind. Of one thing, however, he can assure such as may care to inspect his book - that he has spared no pains in treading the path which seemed to be thus marked out for him in advance. Errors there doubtless are, - errors of judgment, and errors of fact; but for both he must plead the best excuse ever offered for similar imperfections, that of King Alfred in the last sentence on page 162 of this volume.

The selections have been made with reference to giving a fairly just, though necessarily incomplete, view of the surroundings, occupations, problems, ideals, and sentiments of our English ancestors. The earlier pieces of both prose and poetry are short; the longer ones that follow either have more sustained interest, or are supported by their reference to preceding ones; but they, too, fall into natural subdivisions, partially indicated in the printing, so that they may be read as successions of short extracts.
It may be objected that Latin and Greek have been too freely used for illustration. The reply to such an objection is twofold: that the book is likely to fall into the hands of some who possess at least an elementary acquaintance with one or both of these languages, and that to these the disclosure of the relations involved in a comparison with the ancient tongues will materially increase their pleasure and their gain; and, secondly, that the book may be intelligently read, from cover to cover, without the slightest knowledge of either Greek or Latin.

The passages from Bede have been taken from Miller's edition; the portion of Жlfric's Colloquy from the WrightWülker Vocabularies; the extracts from Wulfstan from Napier's edition; the selections from Beowulf and Andreas are based upon the Grein-Wülker edition of the Bibliothek der angelsächsischen Poesie; that from the Judith upon my own edition. The originals of the others are either indicated, or will be patent to scholars.

The normalization of the texts to an Early West Saxon basis - Cosijn's Altwestsächsische Grammatik being the chief authority for norms - will doubtless be criticised by some scholars whose judgment is entitled to respect; but here again the author has had in mind the beginner, for whose especial use the book is intended. If he welcomes this introduction on account of its greater ease, and is yet not led astray by it; if he becomes solidly grounded in the elements, so that further progress is facilitated, while yet he has nothing to unlearn in the future; the author will be consoled by his approbation for the censure of those who entertain a different opinion on this head.

To the normalization of the texts exception has been made in the case of the poetry. For this there are two reasons. In spite of the greater difficulty of the poetry, the student should have had sufficient practice in reading, and particularly in parsing - the importance of which cannot be too much insisted upon - to proceed in the poetry without great obstruction from the retention of manuscript forms, especially as the cross-references of the Vocabulary will furnish him with the necessary assistance; and, secondly, the normalization of the poetry would sometimes have been attended with considerable uncertainty, an uncertainty which is decidedly less in the case of the prose. Besides, such profit as accrues to the student from the inspection of the irregular orthography of the manuscripts may, by the literal reproduction of the orthography, be gained from this part.

The device noted on page 202 is presented with some persuasion of its utility, though frankly as an experiment on which the author would gladly take, after sufficient trial, the judgment of his colleagues.

The Grammar is the merest outline. Its condensation has been largely effected by confining the treatment almost entirely to Old English itself, excluding all references to the theoretical Primitive Germanic. This method is accompanied with some loss; but, again, it is the beginner whom the author has had in view. More doubtful, perhaps, is the expediency of an empirical classification of nouns, instead of the scientific arrangement according to stems; many of us have unquestionably found, however, that the more purely scholarly classification occasions not a little trouble in practice, and that its theoretical advantages are dearly purchased at this stage, before there is any adequate conception of comparative philology and its postulates. The author is not so clear with regard to the probable utility of paragraphs 12-14, on original and derivative vowels; criticism on this point will be especially welcome.

The Appendixes include illustrative matter for which there was no natural place elsewhere, or materials and hints for those who would prosecute their researches a little further. The first three of them carry their meaning on their face; the last is provided in order to facilitate the beginning of dialectic study. It - Appendix IV. has cost more thought than is likely to appear on the surface. The dialects have as yet been but imperfectly discriminated; it is easier to say what is non-West Saxon than what is Mercian or Kentish; the residuum of demonstrably pure Northumbrian forms in Cædmon's Hymn, for example, turns out to be surprisingly small.

Care has been devoted to the unification of the bookto making its parts mutually coherent; the illustrations of syntax are therefore taken from the texts printed in the Reader, and the Vocabulary contains copious references to the Grammar. It is hoped that this plan will prevent distraction on the part of the student, and conduce to a nearly absolute mastery of the matter here presented. The book ought to occupy at least a semester, and could readily be used for a longer time. The author believes that the history of the English language may most profitably begin with such a manual, studied under a competent teacher and with access to a few good reference books. Thus used, it might advantageously be introduced into the earlier part of College courses, and perhaps into the better sort of High Schools and Academies.

In conclusion, it is a pleasure to the author to acknowledge his indebtedness to Miss Elizabeth Deering Hanscom, graduate student of Yale University and American Fellow of the Association of Collegiate Alumnæ, who has rendered material assistance in the preparation of the Vocabulary.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

The favorable reception accorded to the first edition has encouraged the author, besides correcting several small errors, to amplify Appendix I., and to add a new Appendix, numbered V. The provision of a brief bibliography has been so generally welcomed that it has seemed desirable to append a list of books of a more advanced character, while retaining the former one essentially unchanged. No attempt at completeness has been made, but perhaps not many books of primary value have been omitted. The illustration of umlaut from Gothic, suggested by a reviewer, now constitutes Appendix V.

Certain teachers having expressed a wish that the Vocabulary should give the gender of nouns, the author thinks it proper to state the principle upon which the designation of gender was omitted. This principle was that the Grammar should be in constant use. The cardinal use of a knowledge of the gender is with reference to declension; given the declension, and the gender follows. Now the references to the Grammar under nouns primarily indicate the declensions. If, then, the student recognizes the meaning of such references as 43,47 , etc., it is a proof that he is sufficiently acquainted with the paradigms they indicate; if not, it is a clear sign that he ought to refer to them, and that a mere knowledge of the gender would not suffice. This is the author's opinion, but he holds himself prepared to defer to the expressed wish of his colleagues, when he can believe that that wish is at all general among those who have given the book a fair trial.

The author hopes soon to issue a small companion volume of exercises in Old English, designed chiefly to facilitate drill on inflections. These exercises will consist of brief sentences for translation into Old English, based upon the successive prose selections of the Reader, together with an English-Old English Vocabulary.

A final word to those who use this book, - a word based upon experience with it: Look up carefully every foot-note, and constantly refer from the Vocabulary to the Grammar, with reference to the speedy mastery of the latter, supplementing this process by the committal to memory of paradigms.

GRAMMAR.

INTRODUCTION.

Dialects and Periods.

1. Old English (sometimes called Anglo-Saxon) is the name of the Germanic language spoken in England between the middle of the fifth and the middle of the twelfth century. Its literature extends from the eighth to the twelfth century, and there are no Old English words found in documents earlier than the seventh century. The principal prose texts date from the period of King Alfred (871-901 A.D.), or from that of Abbot Alfric (pronounced Alfric), who flourished about the year 1000 A.D. The poetical pieces are mostly of uncertain dates, ranging from the eighth to the tenth or eleventh century.

There are four dialects of Old English, the Northumbrian, Mercian, Kentish, and West Saxon; of these the Mercian is intermediate in its characteristics between the Northumbrian and West Saxon. The Northumbrian dialect formed the basis of modern Scotch and Northern English, the Mercian of standard literary English. The literature of Old English is chiefly extant in West Saxon, though the poetry, and some of the prose, contains forms from other dialects, chiefly from the Northumbrian.

Since the remains of the other dialects are comparatively small, West Saxon is the principal existing representative of Old English, and hence the two terms are often used interchangeably. West Saxon is divided into Early West Saxon (EWS.) and Late West Saxon (LWS.). The former is the language as written in King Alfred's time, the latter as in that of Abbot Elfric and his successors. A hundred years made some changes in the language, but rather with respect to syntax, euphony, and style in general than to the forms of words, though these also underwent some modification.

In this work, the forms are those of Early West Saxon, which is assumed as the standard, even when the selections are from Late West Saxon.

PHONOLOGY.

Letters and Sounds.

2. Alphabet. - The Old English alphabet has the letters of Modern English, with the exception of $j, k, q$, $v$, and $z$, and with the addition of $\boldsymbol{r}$ and $\mathbf{p}$, both of which represent the modern $t h$. Of these, $j$ and $v$ are never used, being represented by $\mathbf{g}$ (or $\mathbf{i}$ ) and $\mathbf{f}$, respectively; $k, q$, and $z$ but rarely, $k$ being commonly represented by $\mathbf{c}, k s(c s)$ by $\mathbf{x}, q(u)$ by $\mathbf{c}(\mathbf{w})$, and $\boldsymbol{z}$ by ts. The two unfamiliar characters $\boldsymbol{\sigma}$ and $\mathbf{p}$ are pronounced eth (eth in brethren) and thorn, respectively; they are used interchangeably in the manuscripts; in this book $\boldsymbol{\sigma}$ will, in general, stand for both.
3. Vowels and diphthongs. - The vowel-letters are those of Modern English, with the addition of æ. Modern editors employ $\boldsymbol{\varepsilon}$ and $\boldsymbol{Q}$ to denote respectively an $\mathbf{e}$ and $\mathbf{o}$ which sprang from an original a (but e occasionally from $0 ; 17,25$ ). The vowels may be either short or long.

The diphthongs are represented by ea, eo, and ie, both short and long. The second vowel sound in each diphthong is scarcely heard in pronunciation, the first element being the one which receives the stress.

The vowel of every syllable is to be pronounced, but in an unstressed syllable the sound is less distinct (23).
4. Quantity. - Long vowels and diphthongs must be carefully distinguished from short ones. In normalized texts, length is indicated by the acute accent (') or the macron ( ${ }^{-}$), placed over a vowel or the first element of a diphthong. For instance, OE. god is Mod. Eng. god, but OE. gód or gṑd is Mod. Eng. good; so for, for, but fōr, went; bær, bare, but b्̄̄æ, bier; ac, but, but āc, oak; geat, gate, but gēat, poured ; is, is, but is, ice; man, man, but mān, crime; tol, toll, but tōl, tool; węnde, went, but wēnde, weened. Beginners should never fail to note whether the radical vowel of each word is long or short, and should no more confound a with $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ than a with $\mathbf{y}$.

The length of a syllable must be distinguished from that of a vowel. Every syllable containing a long vowel is itself long, but so is also one which contains a short vowel followed by any two consonants or a double consonant. In the latter case, the syllable is said to be long by position; in the former, by nature.
5. Pronunciation of vowels and diphthongs. - The pronunciation of the vowels and diphthongs can only be mastered by ignoring their pronunciation in Modern English. Any modern language, or Latin or Greek as pronounced by the Continental method, would be a safer guide.

The exact pronunciation of the Old English vowels and diphthongs can be but imperfectly represented. The learner will not be far astray if he follows the pronunciation indicated in this table:-

| a | as in | last (not $a$ in man) | habban |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| $\overline{\text { a }}$ | " | far | ān |
| æ | '6 | man | æt |
| $\overline{\text { a }}$ | " | care | $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{r}$ |
| e, ${ }^{\text {e }}$ | " | men | help, męnn |
| $\overline{\text { e }}$ | '6 | they | hē |
| 1 | " | fin | in |
| i | ، | machine | wīn |
| -, $\mathbf{Q}^{\text {a }}$ | " | broad (but shorter) | god |
| $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ | " | tone | gōd |
| u | " | full | full |
| $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ | ، | rune | dūn |
| y | ، | $\left\{\begin{array}{l} \text { dünn (Germ.) } \\ \text { din (less accurate) } \end{array}\right.$ | dynn |
| $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ | ، | $\left\{\begin{array}{l} \text { grün (Germ.) } \\ \text { green (less accurate) } \end{array}\right.$ | hy |
| ea | $=$ | $æ+\mathrm{uh}$ | eall |
| е̄a | = | $\overline{\mathbf{e}}+\mathrm{ah}$ | nēah |
| eo | = | e +o | eom |
| ēo | = | $\overline{\mathbf{e}}+0$ | frēond |
| ie | = | $1+$ ěh | fierd |
| ie | $=$ | i + ěh | nied |

Note. - The true somids of $\mathbf{y}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ are most readily produced by placing the lips in the position for pronouncing long 00 , and, while retaining the lips in this position, pronouncing respectively the $i$ in $i t$, and the ee in deem.
6. Consonants. - The consonants are divided into labials, $\mathbf{w}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{p}, \mathbf{b}, \mathbf{f}$. dentals, $\mathbf{r}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}, \mathbf{d}, \boldsymbol{\delta}, \mathbf{s}$. gutturals (sometimes palatals), (ng), $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}$.
7. Pronunciation of consonants. - $\mathbf{w}$ was pronounced as in Mod. Eng., also distinctly in the combinations $\mathbf{w r}, \mathbf{w l} ; \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{p}$, and $\mathbf{b}$ as in Mod. Eng.; $\mathbf{f}$ as $f$ and as $v$ (2).
$\mathbf{r}$ and 1 were pronounced nearly as in Mod. Eng. (but see 21); n, $\mathbf{t}, \mathbf{d}$, as in Mod. Eng.; $\boldsymbol{y}$ as th in thin and in the; $\mathbf{s}$ as $s$ and as $z$.
ng was pronounced like Mod. Eng. ng in finger; when palatal (10) it resembled $n g$ in singe. c was pronounced like Mod. Eng. $k$, or, when palatal, like English ch in child, and was distinctly heard as $k$ in the combination cn; cg like $d g$ in Mod. Eng. bridge (see 11). $\mathbf{g}$ was pronounced as $g$ (but see 9 ) and as $y$ (10). h was pronounced as in English, even in the combinations $\mathbf{h l}, \mathbf{h n}, \mathbf{h r}, \mathbf{h w}$; when final, and in the combinations ht, $\mathbf{h} \boldsymbol{\delta}$, and $\mathbf{h h}$, it had the sound of German ch, as in ach or in ich. hs was pronounced like Mod. Eng. $x$ (cf. 2).

When $\mathbf{c}$ was pronounced as $k, \mathbf{g}$ as $g$, and $\mathbf{h}$ as German $c h$ in ach, these letters are to be regarded as gutturals; when as $c h$ in child, $y$, and $c h$ in $i c h$ respectively, as palatals (10).
8. Surds and sonants. - The consonants $\mathbf{p}, \mathbf{t}$, $\mathbf{c}$, together with f, s, $\boldsymbol{\gamma}$ when pronounced like Mod. Eng. $f, s$, th in thin, are called surds. All the other consonants, and all the vowels and diphthongs, are called sonants.
$\mathbf{f}, \mathbf{s}$, and $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ are surds when beginning a syllable, or following a surd at the end of a syllable; they are sonants, that is, are pronounced like $v, z$, and th in the, when they occur between two sonants, or follow a sonant at the end of a syllable. To the foregoing rule there may be some exceptions; in case of doubt, the analogy of Modern English may be followed.
9. Spirants and stops. - Spirants are consonantal sounds producible by a continuous emission of breath. Stops are momentary or explosive. The spirants are $\mathbf{f}, \mathbf{s}, \boldsymbol{\delta}$, and $\mathbf{h}$ (properly also $\mathbf{g}$ ); to $\mathbf{f}$ and $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ correspond the surd stops $\mathbf{p}$ and $\mathbf{t}$, and the sonant stops $\mathbf{b}$ and $\mathbf{d}$.
10. Gutturals and palatals. - The consonants $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}$, are gutturals when occurring before consonants or the vowels $\mathbf{a}, \overline{\mathbf{a}}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}, \mathbf{o}, \mathbf{Q}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}, \mathbf{u}, \overline{\mathbf{u}}, \mathbf{y}$, and $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ (and sometimes $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}})$. They are palatals when occurring before, and sometimes after, the palatal vowels $\boldsymbol{2}, \mathbf{e}, \mathbf{e}, \mathbf{i}, \overline{\mathbf{1}}, \mathbf{e a}, \mathbf{e} \mathbf{e}$, $\mathbf{e o}, \overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{o}, \mathbf{i e}$, $\mathbf{i e}$ (sometimes $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$ ); $\mathbf{c}$ and $\mathbf{g}$ medially (that is, in the middle of a word), when they are or may be followed by e or i; c likewise in the combination se (pronounced almost like sh); $\mathbf{g}$ in the medial combination $\mathbf{c g}$; and $\mathbf{c}(\mathbf{c c}, \mathbf{n c}), \mathbf{g}(\mathbf{n g})$ often medially and finally after a palatal vowel, but at least $\mathbf{n g}$ not always: e.g., ęngel, Englise have not $\mathbf{n g}=n j$. For the pronunciation of these consonants as palatals see 7 .
11. Double consonants. - Double consonants must not be pronounced as in Mod. Eng., except at the end of a syllable. When medial, each consonant is pronounced separately: sunnum as sun-num, the $n$ 's as in Mod. Eng. penknife.

Double $\mathbf{f}$, when sonant, is always represented by $\mathbf{b b}$, and double $\mathbf{g}$ is usually written cg. The only consonant never doubled is $\mathbf{w}$.

Effects and Relations of Sounds.

12. Original and derivative vowels. - Of the vowels and diphthongs of Old English, some are original, in the sense of being more directly an inheritance from the Parent Germanic tongue, while others are derivative, or result from modifications of those that we call original.

The original vowels and diphthongs are the following: - $\mathbf{a}, \overline{\mathbf{a}}, \mathfrak{æ}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}$ (sometimes), $\mathbf{e}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}$ (rarely), $\mathbf{i}$ (sometimes), $\overline{\mathbf{i}}, \mathbf{o}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}, \mathbf{u}$ (regularly), $\overline{\mathbf{u}}, \overline{\text { ēa, }}, \overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{~ ( s o m e t i m e s ) . ~}$

The derivative vowels and diphthongs are:-
$\boldsymbol{æ}$ (sometimes), $\overline{\boldsymbol{e}}$ (sometimes), $\boldsymbol{e}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}$ (usually), $\mathbf{i}$ (sometimes), $\boldsymbol{\ell}, \mathbf{u}$ (occasionally), $\mathbf{y}, \overline{\mathbf{y}}$, ea, eo, $\overline{\text { éo }}$ (sometimes), ie, ie. Though ea, eo, ie when short are all derivatives, ie may be called a derivative of the second order, since it arises from one of the two others.
13. Relation of original to derivative vowels. - The relations between original and derivative vowels may thus be shown (see 17, 18, 20, 21, 25): -

| Original. | Derivative. |
| :---: | :---: |
| a | $\mathfrak{x}, \mathrm{e}, \mathrm{Q}, \mathrm{ea}, \mathrm{le}$ |
| $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ | $\overline{\text { ® }}$ |
| e | i, eo, ie, o |
| i | eo, u |
| Q | e |
| 0 | e, eо |
| $\overline{\text { o }}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{e}}, \overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{0}$ |
| u | y |
| $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ |
| èa | 1 Ie |
| ēa | $\underline{\mathrm{I}}$ |

14. Relation of derivative to original vowels. - Reversing the order of the last table, we obtain :

| Derivative. | Original. |
| :---: | :---: |
| 20 | a |
| $\overline{88}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ |
| e | a, Q, o |
| E | $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ |
| 1 | e |
| 9 | a |
| y | u |
| $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ |
| ea | a (x) |
| Ea (rarely) | $\overline{\mathrm{B}}$ |
| eo | e, 1, o |
| Eo | $\overline{\text { o }}$ |
| ie | $\mathbf{a}$ (ea), e, e (eo), $\mathbf{1}$ (eo) |
| Ie | $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{\square}$, е̄о |

Occasionally $(28,29,30) \overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$ is derived from $\mathfrak{x}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}$ from $\mathbf{e}, \overline{\mathbf{1}}$ from $\mathbf{i}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}$ from $\mathbf{o}$ or $\mathbf{a}, \overline{\mathbf{u}}$ from $\mathbf{u}, \overline{\mathbf{y}}$ from $\mathbf{y}$, $\bar{e} \mathbf{a}$ from ea, and $\overline{\text { exo }}$ from eo. Rarely are $\mathbf{o}$ and $\mathbf{u}$ derived from e and i (26).

It must be observed that not every vowel standing in the column of derivatives belongs exclusively there. Thus i, for example, is sometimes original (12).
15. Umlaut. - Umlaut is a change effected in the vowel of a stressed syllable by the vowel of a following, usually the next following, syllable.

There are two chief kinds of umlaut, the $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut (pron. $\grave{\imath} h^{\prime}$-oom'-lowt), and the $\mathbf{u}$ - or or-umlaut (oo- or or $h$-).
16. The i-umlaut. - $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut is a change effected in a vowel or diphthong by palatalization, such palatalization consisting in an approximation of the umlauted vowel or diphthong to the sound of $\mathbf{i}(\check{\imath} h)$. The cause of $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut was in all cases an $\mathbf{i}$ or a $\mathbf{j}$ (pronounced like Mod. Eng. $y$ ) of a following syllable, but the $\mathbf{i}$ or $\mathbf{j}$ usually disappeared before the period of historic Old English, or was turned into e. When the word umlaut is used without qualification, $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut is to be understood. See Appendix V.
17. Illustrations of $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut. - The effect of i-umlaut will be shown by the following table: -

| Original Vowel. | Umlaut Vowel. |
| :---: | :---: |
| $\mathbf{a}$ | $\mathbf{e}(\boldsymbol{a})$ |
| $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ | $\overline{\boldsymbol{a}}$ |
| $\mathbf{e}$ | $\mathbf{i}$ |
| $\mathbf{Q}$ | $\mathbf{e}$ |
| $\mathbf{0}$ | $\mathbf{e}$ |
| $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ |
| $\mathbf{u}$ | $\mathbf{y}$ |

| Original Vowel. | Umlati Vowel. |
| :---: | :---: |
| $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ |
| ea (from a) | $\mathbf{i e}$ |
| $\overline{\mathbf{e} a}$ | $\overline{\mathrm{e}} \mathrm{e}$ |
| eo (from e) | $\mathbf{i e}$ |
| $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{o}$ | $\mathbf{i e}$ |

Examples are: mann (man), męnn (men); lār (lore), l戸̈ran (teach); helpan (help), hilpð (helps); męnn (man), męun (men); oxa (ox), ęxen (oxen); dōm (doom), dēman (judge); wulle (wool), wyllen (woollen); brūcan (use), brȳed (uses); eald (old), ieldu (age); hēah (high), hīehra (higher); weorpan (throw), wierp $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ (throws); hrēowan (rue), hriew $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ (rues).

Sometimes two words are so related that $\mathbf{y}$ seems to be i-umlaut of o, like gold (gold), gỳlden (golden); but in such cases the $\boldsymbol{o}$ came from an earlier $\mathbf{u}$.

The umlaut of $\mathbf{a}$ is generally $\boldsymbol{e}$, but in some words $x$ is found.

Strictly speaking, $\mathbf{i}$ is not the umlaut of $\underset{\mathbf{e}}{\times}$, but the phenomenon, though resulting from a somewhat different cause, is virtually the same.
18. Palatal influence. - Initial g, c, and se, change $\boldsymbol{x}$ (from a) to ea, $\overline{\mathbf{x}}$ to $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{a}$, and $\mathrm{e}, \mathbf{e}$ to $\mathbf{i e}$; and se sometimes changes a to ea, $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ to $\overline{\mathbf{e} a,}$ o to eo, and $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ to ēo. Examples: gæf (gave), geaf; gǣfon (gave, plur.), gēafon; scęppan (create), scieppan; gefan (give), giefan; scacan (shake), sceacan; scādan (separate), scēadan; scop (poet), sceop; scōh (shoe), scēoh. Even ēo from $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ : scēor, from scūr, shower.

In the following words, the ge represents original $\mathbf{j}$ (pron. y): geoc, yoke (orig. joc); geond, through (orig. jond) ; geong, young (orig. jung); geoguð, youth (orig. jugữ); gēomor, grief (orig. jōmor); gēa, yea (orig. jā); gēar, year (orig. jār); gē, ye (orig. $\mathbf{j e}$ ).

The $\mathbf{i}$ found in the present stem of some weak verbs (116) stands for original $\mathbf{j}$ (pron. $y$ ), and, as $\mathbf{g}$ represents this $\mathbf{j}$ in the words just instanced, so it often appears in the endings of these weak verbs, sometimes alone, sometimes followed by e, sometimes in one of these two forms preceded by i. Thus nęrian, save, occurs also as nęrgan, nęrigan, nęrigean, etc.; the ind. pres. 1st sing. nęrie as nęrge, nęrige, etc.

Wherever in or just preceding the inflectional ending of a word, $\mathbf{c}$ or $\mathbf{g}$ is followed by $\mathbf{e}$ before another vowel, the e must be understood to indicate an original $\mathbf{j}$ (pron. $y$ ), and an alternative form without e also exists. Thus sēcean and sēcan, seek; męnigeo and męnigo, multitude. Similarly, the $\mathbf{i}$ and $\mathbf{g}$ in the inflectional endings of nouns like hęre, army (44. 2) represent original $\mathbf{j}$ (pron. $y$ ).
19. $\mathbf{y}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ for ie and $\mathbf{i e} .-\mathbf{y}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ properly represent the $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut of $\mathbf{u}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$, but are also frequently found for ie and ie. Sometimes, again, the latter are represented by $\mathbf{i}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{i}}$. Hence, in looking for words containing these letters, it is never safe to confine the search to any one of the three. From eald, old, is formed by means of $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut the noun ieldu, age (17); but the latter might occur in a text or glossary as yldu. Contrariwise, on finding yldu in a text or glossary it would not be safe to conclude that the $\mathbf{y}$ represented the $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut of $\mathbf{u}$, since, as we have just seen, it really goes back to ea and a. Again, were the word to be found as ildu, it should not be inferred that the $\mathbf{i}$ is either original or derived from e (17), for the reason just adduced.

Remember that $\mathbf{y}$ or $\mathbf{i}$, short or long, may stand for ie, short or long.
20. The u- or o-umlaut. - This umlaut is a change effected in the vowels $\mathbf{a}$, $\mathbf{e}$, or $\mathbf{i}$ by a $\mathbf{u}$ or $\mathbf{o}$ of the following syllable. By it a is converted to ea, and e or $\mathbf{i}$ to eo (sometimes $\mathbf{i}$ to $\mathbf{i o}$ ). Examples: caru, care, becomes ceạru; weruld, world, becomes weoruld; miluc, milk, becomes meoloc or mioloc. The change of vowel is, however, not invariable in these circumstances, and, on the whole, may be regarded as exceptional.

The explanation of this phenomenon is that the vowel sound of the following syllable is anticipated, as it were. The vocal organs, while pronouncing the a (properly æ) of caru (cæru), are already shaping themselves to pronounce the $\mathbf{u}$; hence the result is ceuru, very nearly, which is further modified into cearu. For weoruld the explanation is similar, but easier.
21. Breakings. - Before $\mathbf{r}+$ consonant, $\mathbf{1}+$ consonant, and $\mathbf{h}+$ consonant or $\mathbf{h}$ final, $\mathbf{a}$ is regularly converted into ea, and e or i frequently into eo. This change is called breaking, because the one vowel is, as it were, broken into two. Examples:-
a) a to ea: arm (arm), earm; ald (old), eald; ahta (eight), eahta.
b) e or $\mathbf{i}$ to $\mathbf{e o}$ (io sometimes from i): erðe (earth), eorde ; elh (elk), eolh; fehtan (fight), feohtan; Piht (Pict), Pioht, Peoht.

It must be remembered that the sound of $\mathbf{e}$ in ea differs materially from that of the same letter in eo. (5; cf. 20).

The explanation of breaking lies in the fact that the vowels which experienced breaking were formed with a position of the vocal organs quite different from that concerned in the production of $\mathbf{r}, \mathbf{1}$, and $\mathbf{h}$, as pronounced in Old English. These consonants, at the time when they caused breaking, were gutturals; the vowels that underwent breaking were palatals (strictly speaking, when we say that a was broken, we should rather say that it was $\boldsymbol{x}$ ). In the production of these consonants, the back part of the mouth was chiefly concerned; in that of the vowels it was the forward part. Hence, in passing from the vowel position to that of the consonant, an intermediate vowel sound or glide was produced, akin in position and sound to the consonant which it preceded. Although these consonants have at present a pronunciation which cannot be called guttural, yet it is possible to pronounce a sentence like 'What ails you?' in so drawling a manner, especially as regards 'ails,' that this word shall have nearly the sound of $\bar{a}-u l s$. The obscure $\breve{u} h$-sound thus developed may be compared to the second element of the diphthong in ea and eo. Here may be adduced Shakespearian lines such as -

Strikes his breast hard (hah-urd), and anon he casts.

- Hen. VIII. 3. 2. 117.

Look how he makes to Cæsar, mark (mah-urk) him.

\text { —Jul. Ces. 3. 2. } 18 .

My lord (law-urd), will it please you pass along.
-Rich. III. 3. 1. 136.
In all these, meter seems to demand that the italicized words shall be pronounced as disyllabic (Abbott's Shakespearian Grammar, § 485).
22. Ablaut. - Ablaut (pron. ahp'-lowt) is a prehistoric relation existing between the vowels of different tensestems derived from the same verbal root. Thus the relation of $i, a$, and $u$, in the Mod. Eng. sing, sang, sung, is an ablaut relation, and so is the relation of
$i, o, i$ in the Mod. Eng. drive, drove, driven. In Old English the tense-stems of these verbs would be sing-, sang, sung-, sung- (104); drīf-, drāf, drif-, drif- (102). In the former, $\mathbf{i}, \mathbf{a}, \mathbf{u}, \mathbf{u}$ stand in an ablaut relation; in the latter, $\overline{\mathbf{1}}, \overline{\mathbf{a}}, \mathbf{i}, \mathbf{i}$.

It must be observed that the verbal stems concerned sometimes appear in nouns and adjectives, as well as in verbs. Thus the vowel of the Mod. Eng. noun song stands in an ablaut relation with those of the tensestems sing and sung. Again, in Old English, the i of the noun bite, bite, stands in an ablaut relation with the other vowels of the tense-stems of bitan, bite. The latter are bīt-, bāt, bit-, bit- (102), and hence the radical vowel of the noun is identical with that of the third and fourth stems.

Ablaut is not to be confounded with umlaut. Umlaut admits of explanation; ablaut must, so far as Old English is concerned, be merely accepted as a fact.
23. Stress, and the vowels of unstressed syllables. The stressed syllable is the principal one, and usually the first one of the word, except in compounded verbs, and nouns or adjectives with the prefixes be-, ge-, and sometimes for-; these stress the root syllable. The laws relating to vowels hold only of stressed syllables. In unstressed syllables, especially in the second syllable of trisyllabic words, the vowel is liable to pass into a neutral sound, often represented by $\mathbf{e}$, or to disappear altogether. When the vowel disappears, the trisyllabic word of course becomes disyllabic: ęngel, angel, gen. ęngles (instead of ęngeles); hēafod, head, gen. hēafdes (instead of hēafodes). Syncope, as such disappearance is termed, is most apt to occur after a long syllable (4).
24. Representation of Old English vowels in Modern English. - The same Old English vowel letter is not always represented by the same Mod. Eng. letter, nor its sound by the same Mod. Eng. sound; yet there is a certain uniformity, differing in degree with different vowels, in the representation of both sound and letter. Some of the more regular correspondences are given in the subjoined table, though it must be understood that exceptions are numerous. The Mod. Eng. sound or letter that is first given is the commonest; the second is often comparatively rare. The figuration of the Mod. Eng. vowel sounds is that of Webster's Dictionary. For details, see Mayhew's Synopsis of Old English Phonology.

| But | æg | ai, ay | à | brægn, brain ; dxg, day |
|  | $\overline{\text { ® }}$ | ea, ee, e | ē, ě |  flesh |

25. Influence of nasals. - The nasals $\mathbf{m}$ and $\mathbf{n}$ change a preceding a to $\mathbf{Q}$. Usage is not uniform; some texts have $\mathbf{a}$ in this position, and others $\mathbf{Q}$.

When a word cannot be found under a, look for it under $\mathbf{Q}$, and conversely.
26. Influence of $\mathbf{w}$.- In cases where $\mathbf{e}$ or $\mathbf{i}$ has become eo or io (20,21), a preceding wis apt to change eo to $\mathbf{o}$ or $\mathbf{u}$, and io to $\mathbf{u}$. For example, weruld (world) becomes weoruld through the influence of $\mathbf{u}$-umlaut (20), and this may then become woruld. Similarly, widuwe (widow) becomes wioduwe, and then wuduwe. For the $\mathbf{o}$ and $\mathbf{u}$ thus produced, $\mathbf{y}$ is sometimes found.

When $\mathbf{o}, \mathbf{u}$, or $\mathbf{y}$ immediately follows $\mathbf{w}$, it may be suspected, though it must not be assumed, that the vowel was once eo or io, originally e or i.

Consonantal Loss and Change.

27. Loss or vocalization of w. - Some words ending in a long vowel or diphthong originally ended in $\mathbf{w}$, and the $\mathbf{w}$ is still found in the oblique cases of these words. Thus, nom. cnēo (knee), gen. cnēowes, etc., and occasionally in the nominative, cnēow (47.3).

At the end of a word, and following a short syllable which ends in a consonant, $\mathbf{u}$ often stands for original $\mathbf{w}$, the latter having undergone vocalization in that position. When an inflectional syllable is added beginning with a vowel, the $\mathbf{w}$ reappears. Thus, nom. gearu (ready), gen. gearwes, etc. (57.5).

There is frequent loss of initial $\mathbf{w}$ in the negative forms of the verbs wesan, be, witan, know, willan, will: næs, was not, nāt, knows not, nolde, would not, etc. It also disappears in n̄̄(u)ht for nāwiht, naught, cuc for cwic, alive, and a few other words.
28. Loss or replacement of $\mathbf{g}$. - Before $\boldsymbol{d}$ and $\mathbf{n}$ (and before $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ in the word tiolian, grant), $\mathbf{g}$ is often lost, the preceding vowel being lengthened by way of compensation: mægden and mæ्æden, maiden; yegn and סēn, thane. Properly speaking, the palatal $\mathbf{g}$, already in such cases pronounced almost like a vowel, becomes indistinguishable from $\mathbf{i}$ or $\mathbf{y}$ in pronunciation, and by this time its effect is simply to lengthen the vowel which precedes. In a similar manner, ig may be contracted into $\overline{\mathbf{i}}$, sometimes shortened to $\mathbf{i}$ : hungrig and hungri, hungry; ligeə and lī̀, lies (from licgan); stīgrāp and stīrāp, stirrup. The above losses are regular only after palatal vowels (10).

After a guttural vowel (10), after $\mathbf{r}$, or (especially in LWS.) before -st and - $\boldsymbol{\delta}$, endings respectively of the 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind., $g$ frequently becomes $\mathbf{h}$, occasionally gh: genōg and genōh, enough; burg and burh, city; stige and stīh, climbs.
29. Loss of $\mathbf{h}$. - Certain words ending in $\mathbf{h}$ lose the $\mathbf{h}$ before an inflectional ending beginning with a vowel, at the same time lengthening the vowel of the stem, if short: feorh, life, gen. fēores; feoh, preperty, gen. fēos. There are besides a number of contract verbs (101) in which an original $h$ has been lost before vowels (100); gefēon, rejoice, orig. gefehan.

The initial $\mathbf{h}$ of certain indefinite pronouns, and of the various forms of habban, have, is frequently lost after ne, not: nāwðer, nāðer (27) for ne āhwæðer, neither; næfde, had not.
30. Loss of $\mathbf{m}$ and $\mathbf{n}$. - Before the spirants $\mathbf{f}, \mathbf{s}$, and $\boldsymbol{\gamma}$ there has been in some words the loss of an original $\mathbf{m}$ or $\mathbf{n}$, with a lengthening of the preceding vowel: $\overline{\text { ösle, }}$ ousel, orig. amsala; ūs, us, orig. uns. When the resulting vowel is $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$, or its umlaut $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ (17), the original vowel was a (e before nasal, 25): gōs, goose, orig. gans; ēst, favor, orig. ansti.
31. Metathesis of r.- In some words in which a vowel was originally preceded by $\mathbf{r}$, the $\mathbf{r}$ has changed places with the vowel. Thus burna, fountain, brook (cf. Scottish burn), was originally brun(n)a (cf. Germ. Brunnen) ; hors, horse, orig. hros (cf. Germ. Ross).
32. Metathesis of sc. - After a vowel, sc frequently becomes es, often represented by hs or $\mathbf{x}$ (2). Thus āscian, ask (cf. Germ. (h)eischen) becomes āesian, āhsian, āxian (dial. Mod. Eng. axe).
33. Change of $\boldsymbol{d}$ to $\mathbf{t}$.-When $\mathbf{d}$ either precedes or follows a surd (8) in the same word, it regularly becomes t. Thus from bindan, bind, the ind. pres. 2d sing. is formed by adding -st (though sometimes -est), thus, bindst; but, in accordance with this principle, bindst becomes bintst. So from iecan, increase, the ind. pret. 3d sing. is formed by adding -de, thus, iecde; but iecde becomes iecte.
34. Changes of $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ in conjunction with other dentals. Whenever d or $\mathbf{t}$ comes to stand immediately before $\boldsymbol{\delta}$, the combination becomes tt, which is sometimes simplified to $\mathbf{t}$ (35). Thus binder, ind. pres. 3d sing. of bindan, becomes bindr by elision of the e in an unstressed syllable (23); but bind $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ invariably appears as bint; bīd $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ and bītd, respectively from bidan, await, and bītan, bite, both become bītt or bīt.

By a somewhat similar change, s夭 often becomes st. For os is usually found ss, which may be simplified to $s$ (35).

Suspect that $\mathbf{t}$ near the end of a verb may stand for $\mathbf{d}$ or $\boldsymbol{\delta}$, or be the result of contraction.
35. Gemination simplified. - Dotible consonants are of frequent occurrence, especially before an inflectional syllable beginning with a vowel. Thus swimman, swim, będde, to a bed, etc. But gemination is frequently simplified, or, in other words, the second consonant is dropped, (a) at the end of a word, (b) before another consonant, (c) in certain other situations. Thus:-
(a) mannes, gen. sing., but mann or man, man, nom. sing.; (b) ealles, gen. sing. of eal(1), all, but ealne, acc. sing. masc.; (c) $\overline{\boldsymbol{o}}$-er, other, with gen. plur. ending ō̃erra, but usually ṑera, ̄̄əra.
36. Gemination pointing to original $\mathbf{j}$.- In many words which contain a double consonant, especially those whose stem vowel is $\mathbf{e}$, the stem was originally followed by $\mathbf{j}$ (pron. $y$ ), and the consonant was not geminated, but single: sęllan, give, orig. saljan. This was always the case with words containing cg, which, it will be remembered, is the representative of $\mathbf{g g}$ (11): sęcgan, say, orig. sagjan ; hrycg, back, orig. hrugjo-.
37. Grammatical change. - As between certain related words, there is an interchange of $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ and $\mathbf{d}, \mathbf{s}$ and r: inf. cēosan, choose, past part. coren; inf. cweðan, say, past part. cweden (cf. the noun cwide, discourse). This is technically known as grammatical change. Under similar circumstances, there is a like change between $\mathbf{h}$ and $\mathbf{g}$, and $\mathbf{h}$ and $\mathbf{w}$, but owing to a partial disappearance of the $\mathbf{h}$ (cf. 100) this is less noticeable: slieh't, strikes (inf. slēan), slōg, struck; sieh'̃, sees (inf. sēon), sāwon (they) saw.

INFLECTION.

Declension of Nouns.

38. Gender of nouns. - Nouns are either masculine, feminine, or neuter. Names of males are masculine, and those of females feminine, except mægden, mäden (28), girl, wif, wife, and bearn, cild, child, which are neuter. The gender of most nouns must be learned from the dictionary; but all nouns ${ }_{k}$ ending th -a are masculine, and belong to the weak declension (53); all ending in -dōm, -els, -ere, -hād, and -scipe, and most in -end, with names of persons in -ing and -ling, are strong masculines; those ending in -estre, -nes, -räden, $-\boldsymbol{\delta}(\mathbf{u})$ (-бo), -ung, most in -u, and a few abstracts in -ing, are strong feminines.

Compound nouns take the gender of their last component; thus wifman, woman, is masculine, because $\operatorname{man}(\mathbf{n})$ is masculine.
39. Strong and weak nouns. - According to their declension, all nouns are either strong or weak. The nominative of weak nouns always ends in a vowel, either -a or -e, but not all nouns ending in -e are weak.
40. Cases of nouns and adjectives. - Old English has six cases, though in general only four are distinguished. These four are the nominative, genitive, dative, and accusative; the two additional are the vocative, the case of direct address, and the instrumental, which is virtually indistinguishable from the dative, except in adjectives. ALSO LOCATIVLE subsumbl undar ADVERD

The nominative is used as in English. The genitive is the case denoting possessor, source, or cause; its sign is of. The dative denotes the indirect object of an action ; its sign is to or for. The accusative denotes the direct object; it has no sign. The instrumental denotes the means by which an action is performed; its sign is by. or with through $\mathbb{C}$ afiacy.

The instrumental of nouns is included in the declensions under the dative.
41. Uniform case endings. - All nouns, whatever their declension, end in -um in the dative plural. The genitive plural always ends in -a, either appended directly ${ }_{2}$ to the stem, or with -en- (rarely-r-) interposed (43.6); thrs accordingly the genitive plural, to speak more strictly, always ends in -a or -ena (very rarely -ra).

Instead of -um is occasionally found -un, -on, or -an, LWand in later Old English these endings grow common.
42. Strong masculine endings. - All strong masculines, except umlaut masculines (46) and those in -u (45), take the following as regular endings (for exceptions see 43. 5-9; 44.4), where - represents the form of the nominative singular:-

| Singular. | Plural. |
| ---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. - | -as |
| G. -es | - a |
| D. -e | $-u m$ |

43. Masculines ending in a consonant. - The greater number of strong masculines are declined like fisc, fish: -

> Singular.
> N.V.A. fise
> G. fisces
> D. fisce

Plural.
fiscas fisea
fiscum

1. A very few words ending in -cg may insert -ebefore the endings of the plural: sęcgeas, etc. (18).
2. If the radical vowel of the nominative is $æ$ before a single consonant, this is changed in the plural to $\mathbf{a}$ : dæg, day, but plur. dagas, daga, dagum.
3. Nouns ending in $\mathbf{h}$ lose this consonant before a case ending, and in so doing lengthen the radical vowel or diphthong. Thus fearh, swine, but fēares, etc. (29). If the $\mathbf{h}$ is preceded by a vowel, the vowel nding is lost: scōh, shoe, but nom. plur. scōs, not scōas.
4. Disyllabic nouns generally lose the vowel of the second syllable before all endings, when the stem is long by nature or position ( 4,23 ), if the second syllable is not long by position. Otherwise the vowel of the second syllable is regularly preserved. Examples are as follows:-
a. Stem long by nature, and second syllable short: ēdel, country, gen. è rles, not èreles. Engel
b. Stem long by position, and second syllable long by position: hęngest, stallion, dat. hęngeste, not hęngste.
c. Stem long by position (vowel before two consonants), and second syllable short: dryhten, lord, gen. dryhtnes, not dryhtenes.
d. Stem short by nature, and second syllable short: heofon, heaven, dat. heofone, not heofne.

Occasional exceptions are found: dryhtenes, heofne. The retention or loss of the vowel is in part dependent upon the date of the particular text.
5. In a few words there is an occasional gen. and dat. sing. and nom. plur. in -a : feld, field, ford, ford, winter, winter, sumer, summer, and a few others of rare occurrence.
6. Nouns in -end, originally present participles (143), take the gen. plur. in -ra, instead of -a, and the plur. nom. voc. acc. in ee, or without ending, as well as in -as, the latter being rare. Thus nom. plur. hēlende, as well as hēlendas; gen. hēlendra.
7. A single word, bearu, grove, has the nom. sing. in $-\mathbf{u}$, and takes $\mathbf{w}$ instead of the -u before all inflectional endings : nom. sing. bearu, gen. bearwes, . etc. (27).
8. The noun fæder, father, frequently omits the terminations of the sing. gen. and dat.
9. Hæle丈, hero, and mōną', month, sometimes omit the termination of the nom. acc. plur.
44. Masculines in -e. - The declension of strong masculines in -e is almost identical with that of fisc. The sing. nom. acc. voc. takes -e; other exceptions will be noted below. Ende, end, is thus declined:-

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. ęnde | ęndas |
| G. ęndes | ęnda |
| D. ęnde | êndum |

1. Here belong important classes of nouns ending in -ere (143) and -scipe, besides some others. They are much less numerous, however, than those of the preceding declension.
2. The noun hęre, army, sometimes takes -g- or -igbefore the endings of the singular, and the same, or -ige-, before the endings of the plural: hęr(i)ges, etc. Two words sometimes have the gen. plur. in -ig(e)a, -ia: wine, friend, Dęne, Danes, gen. plur. winigea, Dęniga, Dęnia (18).
3. Nouns ending in -ce may retain the -e before the endings of the plural: läee, physician, nom. plur. 1æ̈ceas, as well as lȳeas (18).
4. A few masculine nouns in e occasionally take the nom. acc. plur. in -e, instead of -as : wine, or winas, friend. The following are found in the plural only: lēode (also lēoda), people, ielde, men, ielfe, elves, and the proper nouns Engle, Angles, Seaxe, Saxons, Mierce, Mercians.
5. Masculines in -u. - Here belong the words sunu, son, wudu, wood, me(o)du, mead, magu, boy, bre(o)go, prince, heoru, sword, lagu, lake, si(o)du, custom, spitu, spit. Sunu is thus declined : -

| Singular. | Plural. |
| ---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. sunu | suna |
| G. suna | suna |
| D. suna | sunum |

1. The ending of the nom. sing. -u (sometimes $\mathbf{- 0}$ ) is liable to intrude everywhere except in the dat. plur. and gen. sing. and plur.
2. Besides sunu and wudu, the nouns above given are scarcely found except in the nom. acc. sing.
3. In later Old English these, words begin to assume the endings of fise (43): gen. sunes, nom. plur. sunas, etc.
4. Umlaut masculines. - Here belong fōt, foot, tṑ tooth; man(n), man; fēond, enemy, frēond, friend, (142); brōठor, brother. These take umlaut of the radical vowel (17) in the dat. sing. and nom. voc. acc. plur., and have no ending in those cases. Fōt is thus declined:-

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. fōt | fēt |
| G. fōtes | fōta |
| D. fēt $($ fōte $)$ | fōtum |

1. Brō̃or is irregular, forming its nom. voc. acc. plur. as brōðor or brōōru, instead of brēðer.
2. Occasionally there is found a plur. fōtas, tōðas, instead of fēt, tē.
3. Fēond and frēond usually have dat. sing. fēonde, frēonde, sometimes plur. fēond, frēond, or even fēondas, frēondas.
4. Strong neuters. - In general, the chief distinction between the declension of masculines and that of neuters is in the plur. nom. acc. Where the masculine has -as, the neuter, if its radical syllable be short, has $-\mathbf{u}$, or sometimes -o; if long, has no ending whatever (cf. 23, and especially its final sentence). When the radical syllable is short, the paradigm accordingly is (hof, dwelling):-

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :--- | :--- |
| N.A. hof | hofu |
| G. hofes | hofa |
| D. hofe | hofum |

With a long radical syllable (4), the paradigm is (word, word):-

| Singular. | Plbral. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.A. word | word |
| G. wordes | worda |
| D. worde | wordum |

1. Disyllables are sometimes without ending in the nom. acc. plur., and sometimes take -u: w $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{p}(\mathbf{e}) \mathbf{n}$ and wæ्pnu, weapons; but usually mægenu, forces, nietenu, cattle, earfoठu, labors, wæt(e)ru, waters, hēafdu, heads, wundor, wonders.
2. Occasionally the nom. acc. plur. takes -o or -a instead of -u.
3. Trēo, tree, and cnēo, knee, take -w before all case endings, and sometimes in the nom. sing.: trēowes, etc. (27). Nom. acc. plur. trēowu, enēowu.
4. For a change in the radical vowel of the plural, see 43. 2: fæt, vessel, but fatu, fata, fatum.
5. For the loss of final $\mathbf{h}$, see 43. 3: feoh, money, $f e e$, gen. fēos.
6. For the loss (syncopation) of the vowel of the second syllable, see 43. 4: hēafod, head, nom. plur. hēafdu, not (usually) hēafodu; tungol, star, nom. plur. tunglu, not tungolu; wæter, water, gen. wæteres, not (regularly) wætres. Syncopation is, however, less constant in the nom. acc. plur. of neuters, in cases corresponding to 43. 4. $a$.
7. Neuters ending in -en and -et sometimes double the final consonant before a case ending: $\overline{\boldsymbol{e} f e n}$, even (-ing), gen. $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{fenes}$ or $\overline{\mathscr{e} f e n n e s, ~ e t c . ~ T h e s e ~ n o u n s ~}$ retain the -e of the second syllable.
8. Neuters in -e. - These are declined like word, except that the sing. nom. voc. acc. has ee, and the plur. nom. voc. acc. has -u. Paradigm (wite, punishment) : -

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. wite | wîtu |

1. If the -e of the nom. sing. is preceded by $\mathbf{c}$ or $\mathbf{g}$, the endings of the plural may be preceded by $\mathbf{i}$ (or e): rīcu or rīciu, rīca or rīcia, etc. (18).
2. Neuters in -u. - These are declined like bearu (43. 7), except that they take -u in the plur. nom. acc., instead of -as. There are only half a dozen in all, and these are not of common occurrence: bealu, evil, gen. bealwes, etc.
3. Irregular neuters. - The three words lamb, lamb, cealf, calf, $\overline{\mathbf{e} g}$, egg, and sometimes cild, child, are declined regularly in the singular, but take $\mathbf{r}$ in the plural before the endings -u, -a, -um: lamb, gen. lambes, but nom. plur. lambru.

In LWS. the regular forms, without $\mathbf{r}$, occur.
51. Strong feminines. - Feminine disyllables ending in $-\mathbf{u}$, and having a short radical syllable, belong here; monosyllables with a long radical syllable, and most disyllables, discard the -u of the nom, sing. Abstracts, though long, follow $a$.
a) Paradigm of the short stems, giefu, gift: -

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V. giefu, -o | giefa, -e |
| G. giefe | giefa (-ena) |
| D. giefe | giefum |
| A. giefe | giefa,-e |

Occasionally the ending -u or -o is found in the oblique cases of the singular and in the nom. acc. plural. Duru, door, has -a in the gen. dat. sing., and in the whole plural except the dative. Two or three -nouns in -u take -w before the ending in the oblique cases: beadu, battle, gen. beadwe, etc.
b) Paradigm of the long stems and polysyllables, glōf, glove: -

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V. glōf | glōfa, -e |
| G. glợfe | glōfa |
| D. glōfe | glōfum |
| A. glōfe | glōfa, -e |

1. A few nouns discard the -e of the acc. sing.: d̄̄̄d, deed, tid, time, woruld (20, 26), world.
2. Only rarely does the gen. plur. of long stems take -(e)na.
3. Disyllables in -ung often have -a instead of $\mathbf{e}$ in the dat. sing., and sometimes in the gen. acc. sing.: leornung, learning, dat. leornunga, The words hand, hand, flōr, floor, and woruld, world, occasionally make the same change.
4. Disyllables syncopate the vowel of the second syllable according to 43. 4: sāwol, soul, gen. sāwle, etc.
5. Polysyllables in -nes, -en, -el, and -et double the final consonant when a syllable is added, and retain the preceding -e : gen. dat. acc. sing. ēã́mōdnesse, humility, byrdenne, burden, etc.
6. Umlaut feminines. - These modify the root vowel by umlaut in the dat. sing. and nom. voc. acc. plur., and often in the gen. sing., that is, change $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ to $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$, $\mathbf{o}$ to $\boldsymbol{e}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}$ to $\overline{\mathbf{e}}, \mathbf{u}$ to $\mathbf{y}$, and $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ to $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$. The gen. sing., and, occasionally the dat. sing., is sometimes formed regularly, without umlaut, and with the ending ee. Paradigm, (gōs, goose):-

| Singular. | Plural. |
| :---: | :--- |
| N.V.A. | gōs |
| G. gēs, gōse | gēs |
| D. gēs | gōsa |
|  |  |

The principal nouns which belong here are: $\overline{\mathbf{a}} \mathbf{c}, o a k$, gāt, goat; bōc, book, brōc, trousers, gōs, goose, wlōh, fringe; burg, castle, city, furh, furrow, sulh, plough, turf, turf; cū, cow, grūt, grout, grits, lūs, louse, mūs, mouse, Ørūh, trough; ēa, river; niht, night.

1. The dat. (gen.) sing. of burg is usually byrig, not byrg.
2. Mōdor, mother, and dohtor, daughter, are declined like brṑor (46.1), except that mōdor has only the nom. acc. plur. mōdru, -a, and both may have an umlaut gen. sing. in LWS. (but usually mōdor, dohtor).
3. Sweostor, sister, is without umlaut in any case; it remains sweostor in every case except the gen. plur. sweostra and dat. plur. sweostrum.
4. Weak nouns. - Masculines end in -a, feminines and neuters in -e; but the neuters may be conveniently disregarded, only ēage, eye, and ēare, ear, belonging to this declension. Paradigms (mōna, moon, tunge, tongue):-

1. The number of feminines thus declined is comparatively small. The commonest are perhaps eorde, earth, heorte, heart, lufe, love, cirice, church, tunge, tongue, hearpe, harp, sunne, sun, n्̄̈यre, viper, and ælmesse, alms. The masculines are, on the contrary, very numerous.
2. The declension of the neuters ēage and eare differs from that of the feminines only in the acc. sing., which is like the nom. Their gen. plur. is often ēagna, ēarna.
3. The weak feminine heofone, heaven, should be distinguished from the strong masculine heofon. Besides the weak lufe, there is also a strong lufu, love (51. a).
4. Proper names. - Native names are declined like common nouns, except that feminines ending in -burg take the dative in -e and are without umlaut. Foreign names are sometimes naturalized, and sometimes take their original case endings, but not always with entire consistency. The words Cęnt, Cęrt, i, Tęnet, and Wiht are indeclinable, except that Wiht has the gen. Wihte.

Declension of Adjectives.

55. Weak and strong adjectives. - Adjectives are declined weak when in the comparative, and usually when in the superlative; when ordinals (except ōrer, second, 78,80 ); when preceded by a demonstrative; when used as masculine or feminine nouns preceded by the definite article ; in direct address ; sometimes when preceded by a possessive pronoun ; and exceptionally in poetry in place of the strong adjective. Otherwise adjectives are always used in the strong form.
56. Strong declension of adjectives. - Here it is necessary to distinguish between long monosyllables on the one hand, and short monosyllables (comparatively few) and disyllables on the other.

1. Italicized words indicate differences from the noun declension; cf. these with the pronominal declensions (81, 84, 85).
2. When the radical vowel is $æ$, it is changed as in the paradigm. Otherwise it remains unchanged.
3. Disyllables take the same endings as in the paradigm, but frequently syncopate the vowel of the second syllable before an ending beginning with a vowel, as in ēadig, blessed, gen. ēadges (23; cf. 43. 4), and sometimes conform the nom. sing. fem. to the masc. and neut., and the neut. plur. nom. voc. acc. to the sing.: hālig, holy, not hāl(i)gu.
4. For the ending -u sometimes occurs -o, and for -um the LWS. -on, -an (cf. 41).
5. Adjectives ending in $-\mathbf{u}(-\mathbf{o})$ change the $\mathbf{u}$ to $\mathbf{w}$ before vowels (27): gearu, ready, gen. gearwes, etc.
6. Long monosyllables. - The only difference between the declension of the long and that of the short monosyllables is that the ending - $-\boldsymbol{u}$ of the latter is dropped, and that the radical vowel always remains unchanged. 'Paradigm, gōd, good: -

| Masculine. | Neuter. | Feminine. |

1. Adjectives ending in $\mathbf{h}$ drop the $\mathbf{h}$ in disyllabic forms, and lengthen the radical vowel or diphthong (29): סweorh, transverse, gen. סwēores; but hēah, high, often assimilates the final $\mathbf{h}$ to a following consonant: hēanne, hēarra, etc. In LWS. the $\mathbf{h}$ is often changed to $\mathbf{g}$ before a vowel: hēagum, etc.
2. Words ending in a double consonant usually retain this only before a vowel (35).
3. Adjectives in -e. - These are quite numerous. They are declined like the short monosyllables, except that they always retain their ee when no other ending is provided, but lose it before an ending. Paradigm, grēne, green:-

From an acc. masc. sing., like grēnne, blī̀ne, for example, it is therefore not safe to infer a dictionary form grēn, blī̀.

In consulting the lexicon, care should be taken to distinguish adjectives in -e from such as end in a consonant.
60. Weak declension of adjectives. - This is the same as that of nouns, except that the gen. plur: is regularly formed in -ra (only exceptionally -a or the regular weak ending -ena). Paradigm, gōda, the good:-

1. In LWS. -um frequently becomes -an.
2. When, in consequence of contraction, too many r's or n's are brought together, one of them is rejected. Thus gearu, ready, forms a comparative gearura. This comparative, in turn, would form a gen. plur. gearurara. By contraction this would reduce to gear(u)$\mathbf{r}(\mathbf{a}) \mathbf{r a}$; but the three $\mathbf{r}$ 's are simplified to two, and the resulting gen. plur. stands as gearra.
3. The present participle. - The present participle in -ende is not to be confounded with the noun in -end (for which see 43.6). It is declined like grēne (59). When used in the predicate as nom. or acc. it is generally uninflected. The present participle, like the adjective, is also declined weak.
4. The past participle. - The past participle has the double declension of the adjective, both strong and weak. When used in the predicate it is generally indeclinable, or ends like the strong masculine.

Comparison of Adjectives.

63. Regular comparison. - The comparative is formed by adding -ra to the stem of the positive, and the superlative by adding -osta (-esta); with the latter cf. Greek $-\iota \sigma \tau o \varsigma$. The final -a represents the masculine termination of the weak adjective (60), and undergoes all the replacements of the weak declension. More rarely the superlative is found in -ost (-est), which is then regarded as strong. A final -e of the positive is dropped in comparison (e.g. ēaฮe, easy; comp. ieฮ̃ra, not ieðera) and a radical $æ$ becomes a in the superlative (e.g. smæl, small, superl. smalost, not smælost ; cf. 43. 2).
64. Comparison without mmlaut. - This is the usual mode:-

| Posirive.  heard, hard | Comparative.  heardra | Stperlative.  heardost, |
| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| lēof, dear | léofra | lēfost, |

65. Comparison with umlaut.-This is followed by a few adjectives. The superlative generally ends in -esta : -

| Positive. | Cosparative. | Seprrlative. |
| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| eald, old | ieldra | ieldesta |
| lang, long | lęgra | lęngesta |
| geong, young | giengra | giengesta |
| sceort, short | sciertra | sciertesta |
| hēah, high | hiehra (hierra) | hieh(e)sta |
| grēat, great | grietra | grietesta |
| eade, easy | ieđra | ieđesta |

1. For some of these, unumlauted forms are also found: hēahra, hēahsta, etc.
2. Syncope of $\mathbf{e}$ in the superlative occurs in LWS.: lęngsta, etc.; in hiehsta this is also EWS.
3. For -ost may occur -ust.
4. Different stems in comparison. - In the following the comparative and superlative are not formed from the same stem as the positive:-

| Positive. | Comparative. | Scperlative. |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| gōd, good | $\{\mathrm{bet}$ (e)ra | bętst(a) |
| god, goo | Sēlla, sēlra | sēlest(a) |
| yfel, bad | wiersa | wier(re)st(a) |
| micel, great | māra | messt(a) |
| 1亏̄tel, small | $1 \overline{\mathrm{x}}$ ssa | 1]est(a) |

67. Comparison defective. - In four cases the positive is wanting as an adjective, but may be supplied as an adverb or preposition : -

| Positive. | Comparative. | Stperlative. |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| (feor, far) | fierra | fierrest(a) |

| ( $\overline{\mathrm{Pr}}$, earlier) | $\overline{\text { erra }}$ | $\overline{\text { Erest }}$ (a) |
| (fore, before) | fur\%ra | fyrst(a) |

68. Superlatives in -ma. - Besides the superlative in -est, there is one in -ma (cf. Lat. pri-mus). Two examples are found: forma, the first; hindema, the hindmost.
69. Superlatives in -ma + -esta $=-$ mest $(\mathbf{a})$. - These double superlatives, as they may be called, are chiefly formed from adverbs and prepositions．The compara－ tive is peculiar in being generally formed in－erra， instead of－ra：－

Formation and Comparison of Adverbs．
70．Adverbs formed from adjectives．－Adverbs are formed from adjectives by the addition of－e，－lice，and －unga or－inga．Examples are：wìd，wide，wide，widely； swī̀，strong，swīðe，very ；sō̃，true，sō̄lice，truly； eall，all，eallunga，eallinga，entirely．Occasionally －unga，－inga is employed to form adverbs from other parts of speech．

71．Adjectives in the genitive as adverbs．－The ending －es of the gen．sing．neut．is employed to form a few adverbs from adjectives：ealles，altogether： $\boldsymbol{\sigma} \mathbf{w e} \mathbf{o r e s}$ （58．1），perversely，etc．
72. Adjectives in the dative plural as adverbs. - Examples are: miclum, very; lȳtlum, little.
73. Adjectives in the accusative as adverbs. - Examples are: full, fully; genōg, enough.
74. Adverbs from nouns. - From the genitive: dæges, by day; nīedes, needs; etc. From the instrumental: sāre, sore, etc. From the dative plural : dropmēlum, drop by drop, etc.
75. Adverbs of place. - These are of three classes, according as they answer the question, Where? Whither? or Whence? Examples are:-

| Where? | Wbither? | Whence? |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| ช义̄r | \%ider | Hqnan |
| hwax | hwider | hwquan |
| hēr | hider | heonan |

76. Comparison of adverbs. - Adverbs from adjectival stems are regularly compared by adding or for the comparative and -ost for the superlative. Example: strangor, more strongly, strangost, most strongly (cf. 65).
77. Irregular comparison of adverbs. - A few adverbs have no termination in the comparative. They are always monosyllabic, and have usually undergone umlaut. Such are bęt, better; mā, m्̄க, more; nēar, nearer : etc.

1. Other ordinals for $\mathbf{1}$ are fyresta, fyrmesta.
2. Another form of ordinal for 21 is ān ēac twēntigum.
3. Endlefan and twẹlf probably stand for ānlif and twalif (representing twālif). The -lif may mean left. After counting on the fingers up to 10, one left (ānlif) would be 11; two left (twālif), 12. The final -an (-on) of endlefan may have been added after the analogy of seofon, nigon, etc.
4. Fractions are usually formed by the help of d $\overline{\boldsymbol{e}} 1$, part: סridda d $\overline{\dddot{x}} \mathrm{l}$, one-third; seofoda d $\overline{\dddot{x}} \mathrm{l}$, one-seventh. For one and a half occurs $\overline{\mathbf{o}} \boldsymbol{\sigma} \mathrm{er}$ healf (cf. Germ. anderthalb); so Jridde healf, two and a half; in other words, the OE. ordinal indicates the cardinal from which $\frac{1}{2}$ must be subtracted.
5. Interesting forms, which actually occur, are: 19 , ān l̄̄es twēntig; 39, ān l्̄es fēowertig; 59, ānes wana siextig (cf. Greek évòs סéovtes єi้коб८) ; 450, fîftig and fēower hund, fīfte healf hund; 482 , fēower hund and twā and hundeahtatig; 100,000, ān hund $\boldsymbol{\text { ou}}$ senda; $1,500,000$, fiftiene hund rūsend. Note also fiftiena sum, one of fifteen, i.e. with fourteen companions.
6. Declension of cardinals. - $\overline{\mathbf{A}} \mathbf{n}$ is declined like gōd (58), but with acc. sometimes ænne, inst. $\overline{\text { ene }}$. When declined weak, āna, it signifies alone. Twēgen is declined thus:-

| Masculine | Neuter. | Feminine. |
| ---: | :--- | :---: |
| N.A. twēgen | twā, tū | twa |
| G. | twēg $(\mathbf{r}) \mathbf{a}$ |  |
| D. | twāem, twām |  |

So also is declined bēgen, both. Đrie, Ørēo is declined: -

| Masculine. | Neuter. | Feminine. |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| N.A. Wrie | ¢reeo | サrēo |
| G. | Ơrēora |  |
| D. | \%rim |  |

The cardinals between 3 and 20 are usually indeclinable. Those ending in -tig are sometimes treated as neuter nouns (in which case they are followed by a partitive genitive), sometimes as adjectives, and are sometimes uninflected. Hund and סūsend are sometimes undeclined, but there is also a plural of hund, nom. hunde, dat. hundum ; and of rūsend, nom. סūsendu, gen. -da, -dra, dat. -dum. These numerals are always followed by the genitive.
80. Declension of ordinals. - All are declined like weak adjectives (60), except $\overline{\boldsymbol{o}} \boldsymbol{\gamma} \mathrm{er}$, second, which is strong.

2. Reflexive pronouns. - In place of the reflexive, which does not exist as an independent form, is used the personal pronoun (81).
3. Possessive pronouns. - Two sorts of possessives must be distinguished, the declinable and the indeclinable. All of these are identical in form with the genitive of the personal pronoun, except sin, which is formed from a lost reflexive. The declinable possessives are minn, my, סīn, thy, ūre, our, ēower, your, sin, his, and the seldom used uncer, of us two, and incer, of you two. These follow the strong declension of adjectives $(57,58)$. The indeclinables are his, his, hi(e)re, her, and hi(e)ra, their, the genitives of the third personal pronoun.
4. The demonstrative 'that.' - The pronoun se, sẽo, oret, is at once the equivalent of Mod. Eng. that and of the article. Like that, it is employed in a relative as well as a demonstrative sense, and frequently does duty for the third personal pronoun. The demonstrative pronouns have an instrumental case, as does the neuter of the interrogative hwret.

5. The conjunction $\boldsymbol{x} t$, and the adverb $\boldsymbol{\varnothing} \overline{\mathbf{a}}$ ( $=$ there, then, etc.), must not be confounded with the pronoun.
6. Parallel with se, sēo, is a rare $\boldsymbol{\sigma} \mathbf{e}$, $\boldsymbol{\delta} \overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{o}$, which eventually supplants the former.
7. Ð̄̄̄m, סām becomes オan, ,on in such words

8. The forms of this pronoun should be carefully distinguished from those of the next.
9. The demonstrative 'this.' - Mod. Eng. this is represented by the demonstrative סes, סēos, סis.

2. Minor demonstratives. - Less important demonstratives are ilca, same, which is declined weak, and self, self, which takes both declensions.
3. Relative pronouns. - The office of the relative is assumed:
a) by the demonstrative se, sēo, $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ æt, the reference being rendered explicit by the case form.
b) by the demonstrative se, seeo, dret, with the particle $\boldsymbol{\delta e}$ appended.
c) by the indeclinable $\boldsymbol{\delta}$, the reference being rendered explicit by an appended personal pronoun in the proper case form.
d）by the particle $\boldsymbol{\delta e}$ alone，representing all num－ bers，genders，and cases，the reference being much less explicit．

c) hwā, any one (and its compounds) is declined like the interrogative.
d) Indefinite relatives are formed from the interrogatives by swā-swā: swā-hwā-swā, whoever, etc.
e) man (originally mann), one (cf. French on, Ger. man), is used only in the nom. sing.

Verbs.

90. Classification of verbs. - Verbs are either strong (92) or weak (96); besides which there are two small classes of important verbs, called respectively preteritive presents ( 124 ff .) and anomalous ( 137 ff .). Weak verbs are in general derivative; and the stem can usually be detected as existing in some other independent word, often a noun or adjective, or the pret. sing. tense-stem of a strong verb.
91. The present stem. - The present stem of a verb is what remains after cutting off the infinitive ending -an or -ian (in contract verbs, -n). The radical vowel is the vowel of this stem; and the consonant or consonants which terminate the stem are, when such exist, called stem-finals. The stem as obtained above is one of the four tense-stems of strong verbs, or of the three tense-stems of weak verbs.
92. Tense-stems of strong verbs.-Strong verbs change the radical vowel to form the different tense-stems, like the verbs called irregular in Modern English. As in Modern English the verb drive has the preterit drove and past participle driven, so in Old English the same verb has the pret. sing. drāf and past participle drifen. However, instead of the three tense-stems of Modern English, there are four in Old English for strong verbs, the preterit being subdivided into preterit singular and preterit plural.

The four stems of drifan, drive, are:-

| Present. | Pret. Sing. | Pret. Plur. | Past Part. |
| drif- | drāf | drif- | drif- |

93. Forms derived from each stem. - From the present stem are formed the whole of the present indicative and optative, the imperative singular and plural, the infinitive, the gerund, and the present participle - in all seventeen forms.

From the pret. sing. stem are formed only the 1st and 3 d persons singular - two forms.

From the pret. plur. stem are formed the whole pret. plur. of indicative and optative, the whole pret. sing. of the optative, and the 2 d person singular indicative - ten forms.

From the past participial stem is formed only the past participle - one form.
94. Commonest forms of the verb. - From the present stem the form in commonest use is the ind. pres. 3 d sing.; from the pret. sing. stem, the ind. pret. 3d sing.; from the pret. plur. stem, the ind. pret. 3d plur. Umlaut (17) and contraction (34) are apt to obscure the origin of the first of these, but not of the other two. Thus from standan, stand - whose principal parts are standan, stōd, stōdon, standen - the ind. pret. 3d sing. is stōd, the ind. pret. 3d plur. stōdon, but the ind. pres. 3d sing. stęnt (instead of standeฮ).
95. Conjugation of a strong verb.-Types are: bindan, bind; (for contracts) fōn, seize: - Indicative.

Pres. Sing. 1. binde; fo
2. bind(e)st, bintst; fēhst
3. bind (e) $\ddagger$, bint; feh $\boldsymbol{\text { f }}$

Plur. bindaæ, binde; fōæ
Pret. Sing. 1. band; fēng
2. bunde; fenge
3. band; fēng

Plur. bundon; fēngon
Imper. Sing. bind; fōh
Plur. binda't, binde; fōt Gerund tō bindanne; tō fōnne
Pres. Part. bindende; fōnde Past Part. (ge)bunden; (ge)fangen
The $2 d$ sing. pres. ind. is sometimes formed in -s\%. The $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ is derived from the $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\mathbf{u}}$ of the personal pronoun, the old ending having been $\mathbf{s}$. This $\mathbf{s}$, followed by the personal pronoun, became st, which should regularly become st (34), but does not always.

Note. - The ind. and imper. (sometimes opt.) plur. binde is used when the verb is immediately followed by a pronoun as subject: binde $\mathbf{w e}$, not bindaf wē, we bind, let us bind; binde gè, not binda'̃ gé, bind ye.
96. Conjugation of the weak verb. - Weak verbs form the preterit by the addition to the present stem of -de for the singular (ind. pret. 2 d sing. -dest), and -don (-den) for the plural. A few verbs take -e before the -de, and many take -o. The vowel of the present stem is never changed before -ede and -ode, but in some verbs is changed before -de; a list of the latter is given in 114.

The past participle of weak verbs is formed by the addition of -ed (-od, -d).

The -d of the endings -de, etc., and -ed, is changed to -t after certain stem-finals (33), and is lost in other situations; for details see 113 and 114. Certain stemfinals also undergo change before the same endings; - for details see 114.
97. Classes of strong verbs. - Under strong verbs are included two principal divisions, according as their tense-stems were originally formed in one manner or another. Strong verbs are accordingly divided into Ablaut Verbs and Reduplicating Verbs. This distinction is mainly historical, and for practical purposes need not be insisted on at the outset.
98. Ablaut verbs. - Of these there are six principal classes, for which see 102-107.
99. Vowels of the present stem. - To facilitate the assignment of verbs to their proper classes, the following table may be useful, in conjunction with 101-110. The Ablaut Classes are distinguished by the Roman numerals, and the Reduplicating Verbs by Red.

| Short Radical Vowel. | Class. |
| :---: | :---: |
| a | VI, Red. |
| $\boldsymbol{\infty}$ | VI |
| ¢ | VI |
| $\mathbf{e}+\mathbf{r}$ or 1 (also brecan) | IV |
| e + any single cons. but $\mathbf{r}$ or $\mathbf{1}$ | V |
| e + two cons. | III |
| i followed by nasal | III, IV |
| i followed by non-nasal | III, V |
| Q, see a |  |
| $\mathbf{u}$ in cuman | IV |
| $\mathbf{u}$ in other verbs | III |
| ea | VI, Red. |
| eo | III |
| ie | III, V, VI |
| Long Radical Vowzl. | Class. |
| $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ | Red. |
| $\overline{\text { ® }}$ | Red. |
| $\overline{\text { e }}$ | Red. |
| $\overline{1}$ | If. |
| $\overline{\text { o }}$ | Red. |
| $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ | II |
| èa | VI, Red. |
| $\overline{\text { eoo in contract verbs }}$ | I, II, V |
| eoo in other verbs | II, |

100. Contract verbs. - Contract verbs are strong verbs whose stem-final was originally $\mathbf{h}$. This $\mathbf{h}$ was lost before vowels (29), and the preceding vowel was then amalgamated with the following. The resultant diphthong (or vowel) is $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{o}$ in the case of ten verbs, èa in that of four, and $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ in that of two. The $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$-verbs belong to the Reduplicating Class, the $\bar{e} a$-verbs to the Sixth Ablaut Class, and the $\bar{e} 0$-verbs to the First, Second, and Fifth Ablaut Classes.
101. Contract verbs according to classes. - Distributed according to classes, the contract verbs are as follows:-
I. lēon (orig. lîhan), lend; sēon, sift ; têon, censure; Yēon, thrive; wrēon, cover.
II. flēon (orig. flēohan), flee; tēon, dravo.
V. gefēon (orig. gefehan), rejoice; plēon, venture; sēon, see.
VI. flēan (orig. flahan), flay; lēan, blame; slēan, strike; §wēan, wash.

Red. $\mathbf{f o ̄ n}$ (orig. fanhan $>$ fōhan), seize; hōn, hang.
Of these the most important are tēon, censure, סèon, thrive, wrēon, cover; flēon, flee, tēon, draw; gefēon, rejoice, sēon, see; slēan, strike, ơwēan, wash; fōn, seize, and hōn, hang.

Tēon, draw (II), should be carefully distinguished from tė̀on, censure (I); and likewise sēon, see (V), from sēon, sift (I). The principal parts of tēon, draw, are:-
tēon tēah tugon (ge)togen of tēon, censure, are: -

\text { tēon tāh tigon } \quad \text { (ge)tigen }

But there is a tendency on the part of contract verbs like the latter of these (I) to assume throughout the forms of the former (II).

Đēon, thrive (102), has past part. סigen and סungen.
The imp. sing. always ends in $\mathbf{h}$, and has a long vowel in verbs of the First, Second, and Reduplicating Classes, a short vowel in the Fifth and Sixth. Examples: (I) tēon, censure, imp. tīh; (II) tēon, draw, imp. tēoh; (V) sēon, see, imp. seoh; (VI) slēan, strike, imp. sleah ; (Red.) fōn, seize, imp. fōh.
102. Strong verbs of the First Ablaut Class. -

> Stem vowels (normally) $\overline{\mathbf{i}}, \overline{\mathbf{a}}, \mathbf{i}, \mathbf{i}$
> Typical verb drîfan, drive
> Four stems drîfan drāf drifon drifen

Like drifan are conjugated all strong verbs with $\overline{\mathbf{1}}$ in the present stem. Here belongs any strong verb with $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ in the first preterit stem, $\mathbf{i}$ in the second preterit stem, or $i$ in the past participial stem. Among the more common are: bīdan, remain; bītan, bite; rìdan, ride; ( $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ )rīsan, arise; scīnan, shine; slītan, tear; stīgan, ascend; swīcan, abandon; (ge)wītan, go; wrītan, write.

Umlaut does not affect the vowel of the present stem (94).

The 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind. are thus formed $(33,34)$ :
d-stems
t-stems bīdan bitan bitst, bit(t)
bitst, bit $(t)$

| s-stems | rîsan | rist, rīst (rīs ${ }^{\text {J }}$ ) |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| \%-stems | snīðan | snist, snít (\%) |
| Contracts (101) | wrēon | wrīhst, wrîh'゙ |
| Others are normal | drífan | drîft, drif ${ }^{\text {d }}$ |

The second preterit and past participial stems of the verbs snïðan, cut, lïðan, go, and scrīðan, proceed, take d instead of $\boldsymbol{\boldsymbol { f }}(37)$ : snidon, sniden, etc. Other verbs in $\boldsymbol{\delta}$ retain the $\boldsymbol{\delta}$.

| Stem vowels | $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{O}$ or $\overline{\mathbf{u}}, \overline{\text { ena }}$, u, o |  |  |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Typical verbs | bēodan, offer; brūcan, enjoy |  |  |  |
| Four stems | bēodan | bēad | budon | boden |
|  | brūcan | brēac | brucon | brocen |

Like bēodan are conjugated all strong verbs having $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{o}$ in the present stem, except some contracts, and like brūcan all having $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$. Here belongs any strong verb having ēa in the first preterit stem. Among the more common are: cēosan, choose; drēogan, endure; hrēosan, fall; (for)lēosan, lose ; tēon, draw; būgan, bow.

Stems in s, $\boldsymbol{\delta}$, and contract vowel (37):-

| cēosan | cēas | curon | coren |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| sēoðtan | sēað' | sudon | soden |
| tēon $(101)$ | tēah | tugon | togen |

Like cēosan are formed stems in s; like sēoðan, ābrēoðan, frustrate; like tēon, flēon, flee.

Umlaut changes the $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{o}$ of the present to $\overline{\mathbf{i}}$ (or $\overline{\mathbf{1}}$ ), and $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ of the present to $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$, in the 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind.: forlīest, brȳč.

The 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind. are thus formed (33, 34): -
d-stems
t-stems
s-stems
g-stems (28)
Contracts (101)
Others are normal

| bēodan |
| :--- |
| gēotan |
| forlēosan |
| drēogan |
| tēon |
| crēopan |

bīetst, bīet(t)
gietst, giet( $\mathbf{t}$ ) forliest, forliest (-s $\mathbf{s}$ ) driegst (-hst), drieg'゙ (-h\%) tiehst, tieh ${ }^{\boldsymbol{*}}$ crīepst, criépæ
104. Strong verbs of the Third Ablaut Class. -

Stem vowels various, but all short
Typical verbs bindan, bind; helpan, help; gieldan, yield; weorpan, throw; berstan, burst
Four stems

| bindan | band | bundon | bunden |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| helpan | healp | hulpon | holpen |
| gieldan | geald | guldon | golden |
| weorpan | wearp | wurpon | worpen |
| berstan | bærst | burston | borsten |

Like bindan are conjugated all strong verbs in in or im + consonant, besides iernan, run, beornan, burn, originally rinnan, brinnan.

Like helpan are conjugated all in el + consonant, besides fēolan, reach, which is irregular.

Like gieldan are conjugated all in iel + consonant.
Like weorpan are conjugated all in eor or eoh + consonant (21. b).

Like berstan are conjugated סerscan, thresh; bregdan, brandish; stregdan, strew; besides frignan, inquire, which resembles it in all except the vowel of the present.

The stems of weorðan, become, are (37):-
weorðan wearð wurdon worden

Bregdan and frignan may drop g, and lengthen the preceding vowel (28): br戸̄ed, frīnan.

Findan, find, likewise forms its 3d sing. pret. ind. as funde, which is indeed the usual form.

Among the more common verbs are: drincan, drink; findan, find; (on)ginnan, begin; winnan, strive; limpan, happen; belgan, be angry; hweorfan, turn; feohtan, fight.

Umlaut changes the eo of the present to ie in the 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind.: wierpd. A similar change, though not due to precisely the same cause (17), is found in presents in $\mathbf{e}$, which is converted to $\mathbf{i}$ or $\mathbf{i e}$ : hilpst, bierst.

The 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind. are thus formed $(33,34):-$

| d-stems | bindan | bintst, bint |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| t-stems | feohtan | fiehtst, fieht |
| st-stems | berstan | bierst, bierst |
| \%-stems | weordan | wier(\%)st, wier ${ }^{\text {¢ }}$ |
| nn-stems | winnan | winst, win't (35, b) |
| Others are normal | singan | singst, sing ${ }^{\text {® }}$ |

The stems of fēolan, reach, are:- fēolan fealh fulgon (f̄̄̄lon) folen

Exceptional forms are the 3 d sing. pres. ind. of bregdan and stregdan: brītt, strēt(t).
105. Strong verbs of the Fourth Ablaut Class. -

| Stem vowels | e | æ | $\overline{\mathbf{x}}$ | $\mathbf{o}$ |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  | $\mathbf{i}(\mathbf{u})$ | $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ | $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ | $\mathbf{u}$ |
| Typical verb | beran, bear |  |  |  |
| Four stems | beran, bær, bēron, boren |  |  |  |

Like beran are conjugated teran, tear; scieran (18), shear; cwelan, die; helan, conceal; stelan, steal; hwelan, roar; brecan, breal.

The two irregular verbs of this class are among the most important in the language: niman, take, and cuman, come. Their stems are :-

| niman | nōm | nōmon | numen |
| cuman | $\mathbf{c}(\mathbf{w}) \overline{\mathbf{o} m}$ | $\mathbf{c}(\mathbf{w}) \overline{\mathbf{o} m o n}$ | cumen (cymen) |

Umlaut changes the $\mathbf{u}$ of cuman to $\mathbf{y}$ in the $2 d$ and 3 d sing. pres. ind.: cymst, cymor. A similar change, though not due to precisely the same cause (17), is found in the presents in $\mathbf{e}$, which is changed to $\mathbf{i}$ or ie: bi(e)rst, stilf.
106. Strong verbs of the Fifth Ablaut Class. -

Stem vowels (normally) e, æ, $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}, \mathbf{e}$
Typical verbs sprecan, speak; cweむan, say; giefan, give; biddan, request; gefēon, rejoice

| Four stems | sprecan | spræc | sprēeon | sprecen |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  | cweæan | cwæð | cwādon (37) | cweden |
|  | giefan (18) | geaf | gēafon | giefen |

| Four stems | biddan | bæd | b̄̄don | beden |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  | gefēon (101) | gefeah | gef戶̄gon |  |

Like sprecan are conjugated etan, eat; tredan, tread; metan, measure; wrecan, pursue; and a few others.

Like cwedan is conjugated no other verb.
Like giefan is conjugated gietan, get (18).
Like biddan are conjugated licgan, lie; sittan, sit.
Like gefēon is conjugated sēon, see, except that its pret. plur. is sāwon, and past participle sewen, segen.

Umlaut, or a change analogous to it (17), converts the $\mathbf{e}$ of the present to $\mathbf{i}$ in the $2 d$ and $3 d$ sing. pres. ind.: cwio ; in contracts we have ie, not ie, since the vowel of the present was originally short: sieho.

The 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind. are thus formed (33, 34): -

| d-stems | tredan | tritst, $\boldsymbol{t r i t}(\mathbf{t})$ |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| t-stems | gietan | gietst, giet(t) |
| 『-stems | cwe ${ }^{\text {an }}$ | cwist, cwi' |
| g-stems (28) | licgan | ligst (līst), ligy (lī') |
| Contracts (101) | sēon | siehst, sieh\% |
| Others are normal | sprecan | spricst, spric\% |

The vowel of the pret. sing. is sometimes long in verbs in et: $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{t}, \mathbf{m} \overline{\mathscr{x}} \mathbf{t}$. Imp. sing. bide (cf. 107).
107. Strong verbs of the Sixth Ablaut Class. -

Stem vowels (normally) a, $\overline{\mathbf{o}}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}, \mathbf{a}$ Typical verbs faran, go; slēan, strike; standan, stand; hębban, raise

| Four stems | faran | fōr | fōron | faren |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  | slēan (101) | slōg | slōgon (37) | slægen (slęgen) |
|  | standan | stōd | stōdon | standen |
|  | hębban (11) | hōf | hōfon | hafen |

Like faran are conjugated sacan, dispute, wacan, wake, tōse(e)acan, depart, and one or two others.

Like slēan are conjugated lēan, blame, ס̀wēan, wash.
Like standan is conjugated no other verb.
In the main like hębban are conjugated the following: -

| hliehhan (36), laugh | hiōh | hlōgon (37) |  |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| scieppan (18), create | scōp (scēop) | scōpon (scēopon) | sceapen |
| stæppan, step | stōp | stōpon | stapen |
| swęrian, swear | swōr | swōron | sworen |

Umlaut changes the $\mathbf{a}$ of the present to $\mathbf{e}$ ( $\boldsymbol{x}$ ), and the éa of the present (see 101) to ie (not ie), in the 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind.: stẹnt, færst, slieh\%.

The 2 d and 3 d sing. pres. ind. are thus formed (34): -

| d-stems | standan | stẹntst, stęnt |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| b-stems | hębban | hêfst, hęf\% |
| Contracts (101) | slēan | sliehst, slieh ${ }^{\text {\% }}$ |
| Others are normal | faran | ferst, fer\% |

The verbs like hębban are peculiar in having umlaut in the present stem, which causes them, in so far, to resemble the Weak Verbs of the First Class (111). Like sellan, etc., they have the imp. sing. in -e: hęfe, swęre, etc. (cf. 117). The umlaut is due to the fact that the stem of this group, unlike that of most strong verbs, was followed by a $\mathbf{j}$ (16). Thus the inf. stæppan stands for original stapjan; were it not for the umlaut-causing -j-, the infinitive would have been stapan; and so in the other four verbs.
108. Reduplicating verbs. - Stem vowels various.

A peculiarity of this class - shared, however, by a very few verbs of the Sixth Ablaut Class (107) - is that the vowels of the first and fourth stems are identical (with two or three exceptions noted below), and that those of the second and third stems are likewise identical. The vowel (diphthong) of the preterit is sometimes $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{o}$, less frequently $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$.
109. Reduplicating preterits in ēo. - The present stem has ea (rarely a), $\overline{\mathbf{a}}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}, \overline{\mathbf{o}}$, or $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$.

Typical verbs feallan, fall; bannan, summon; cnāwan, know; hēawan, hew; flōwan, flow; wēpan, weep

| Four stems | feallan | fēoll | fēollon | feallen |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  | bannan | bēonn | bēonnon | bannen |
|  | cnāwan | cnēow | cnēowon | cnāwen |
|  | hēawan | hēow | hēowon | hēawen |
|  | flōwan | flēow | flēowon | flowen |
|  | wēpan | wēop | wēopon | wōpen |

Like feallan are conjugated verbs in eal + consonant, besides weaxan, grow (originally of the Sixth Ablaut Class, 107): healdan, hold; wealdan, govern, etc.

Like bannan (very rare) is conjugated gangan, go (but usually as gān, 141).

Like cnāwan are conjugated verbs in āw, besides swāpan, sweep: - blāwan, blow; sāwan, sow, etc.

Like hēawan are conjugated verbs in ēa: bēatan, beat; hlēapan, leap.

Like flōwan are conjugated verbs in $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ : blōwan, bloom (not to be confounded with blāwan, blow); grōwan, grow; spōwan, thrive; rōwan, row.

Like wēpan is conjugated no other common verb; in wēpan the stem vowel of the present is derived by umlaut from $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$, the latter reappearing in the past participle.-Umlaut as in 94.
110. Reduplicating preterits in $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$. - The present stem has $\overline{\mathbf{a}}, \overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$, or $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$. Umlaut as in 94 .

Typical verbs l̄̈̄tan, let; hātan, call; fōn, seize Four stems lēetan lēt lēton l̄̄̄ten hātan hēt hēton hāten fōn (101) fēng fēngon fangen
Like $1 \overline{\not x} t a n ~ a r e ~ c o n j u g a t e d ~ d r \bar{x} d a n, ~ d r e a d ; ~ r \bar{x} d a n, ~$ consult, read (usually weak); slǣpan, sleep.

Like hātan is conjugated lācan, jump; scādan, scēadan (18), separate.

Like fōn is conjugated hōn, hang (3d sing. fēh\%, hēhð).
111. Weak verbs of the First Class. - The stem vowel of the present always has umlaut (except that $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \boldsymbol{0}$ sometimes persists, i.e., does not become ie). The infinitive ends in -an or -ian, the latter being infrequent.
112. Weak infinitives in -an. - These take the preterit either $(113,114)$ in -de (-te) or (115) in -ede, the past participle in -ed or in -d (-t).
113. Weak preterits in -de (-te), with retention of the stem vowel. - Here belong verbs whose stem vowel is long by nature (4), and a number in which the stem syllable is long by position as a result of gemination (36). The past participle is formed in -ed, contraction taking place in $\mathbf{t}$ - and $\boldsymbol{d}$-stems. The infinitive always ends in -an. Simplified gemination by 35.

| hīeran, hear | hierde | (ge)hiered |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| fyllan, fill | fylde (35) | (ge) fylled |
| cyssan, kiss | cyste (33, 35) | (ge)cyssed |
| sęttan, set | sette (33) | (ge)sett |
| sęndan, send | sequde | (ge) seqnd (ed) |
| 1戸̈ædan, lead | 1ᄑ̄̈dde | (ge) $1 \overline{\bar{E} d}$ (ed) |
| iecan, increase | iecte (33) | (ge) ieced |
| èhtan, persecute | èhte | (ge) $\overline{\mathbf{e} h t}$ |
| mētan, find | mētte | (ge) mēt (t) |
| gierwan, prepare | gierede | (ge) gier(w)ed |

Like hīeran are conjugated all verbs not belonging to any of the following divisions.

Like fyllan are conjugated stems ending in a double consonant, excepting those like cyssan and settan, and under 114 and 115.

Like cyssan are conjugated stems ending in ff, pp, and ss.

Like sęttan are conjugated stems ending in tt (imp. sing. sęte).

Like sęndan are conjugated stems ending in a consonant $+\mathbf{d}$.

Like l프dan are conjugated stems ending in a vowel + d.

Like iecan are conjugated stems ending in $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{p}$, and $\mathbf{x}$.

Like ēhtan are conjugated stems ending in a consonant $+\mathbf{t}$.

Like mētan are conjugated stems ending in a vowel $+\mathbf{t}$.

Like gierwan are conjugated stems ending in rw and $\mathbf{1 w}$. The forms of the present sometimes retain the $\mathbf{w}$, sometimes not.
114. Irregular preterits and past participles. - Certain verbs, in other respects like those of the last paragraph, and whose stems end in $\mathbf{1 1}$, cc, c (nc, re), or $\mathbf{g}$ ( $\mathbf{c g}, \mathbf{n g}$ ), form their preterits and past participles from a stem without umlaut. In the case of the 11-, cc-, and simple c-verbs, to determine, from the present stem, what form the past stem will assume, find the original vowel corresponding to the umlaut vowel of the present, and consider what changes, if any, will be caused by breaking (21). The 1 -verbs take -de and -d, the $\mathbf{c}$ - and $\mathbf{g}$-verbs -te and -t. The c- and $\mathbf{g}$-verbs often insert -e- before the infinitive ending (18). Stems ending in $\mathbf{c}$ and $\mathbf{g}$ change these consonants to $\mathbf{h}$ before the $\mathbf{t}$ of the ending.

The list is as follows:-

The preterit and past participle of rāe(e)an and t्̄̄xe(e)an should properly have $\overline{\mathbf{a}}:$ rāhte, etc. This does, indeed, sometimes occur, but is much less common than the $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$.
115. Infinitives in -an, with preterit in -ede. - Here belong two groups of verbs whose infinitives end in -an (exceptionally -ian).
(a) The first group comprises the following verbs with stems ending in a double consonant (cf. 11); fręmman, perform; gręmman, provoke; trymman, confirm; סęnnan, extend; węnnan, accustom; dynnan, hlynnan, resound; cnyssan, beat; scęðみan, injure (sometimes strong); swębban, quiet; węcg(e)an, agitate; Jicg(e)an, receive (sometimes strong). Occasionally these verbs take an infinitive in -ian (116).
(b) The second group comprises stems ending in a consonant + either $\mathbf{l}, \mathbf{n}$, or $\mathbf{r}$. This group is somewhat irregular, occasionally having preterits like hyngerde, instead of the more regular hyngrede, nęmde for nęmn(e)de, named, and ęfnde for ęfnede, performed.

Typical verbs (a) fręmman, perform frẹmede (ge)fręmed
(b) hyngran, hunger hyngrede (ge)hyngred

Note. - Leecg(e) an, lay, is irregular in the preterit and past part.: legde (lēde), (ge) legd (-lēd), instead of legede, (ge)leged.
116. Infinitives in -ian with preterit in -ede. - Here belong a few weak verbs of the First Class. They have a short stem ending in $\mathbf{r}$, or occasionally in $\mathbf{1}$, $\mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}$, or one of the spirants. The vowel of the stem is usually e (ie) or $\mathbf{y}$. Examples are: nęrian, save; hęrian, praise; byrian, pertain; hęlian, conceal; trymian, confirm (see 115. a).
Three stems nęrian nęrede (ge)nęred
117. Paradigms of the First Class. - For the conjugation of weak verbs of the First Class we may choose: hieran, hear (113); sęllan, give (114, 36); fręmman, perform (115); nęrian, save (116).

118. Weak verbs of the Second Class. - These are very numerous. Many are formed from nouns and adjectives (cf. 90). The infinitive always ends in -ian, or its equivalent -ig(e)an (18). Though the i of an ending usually causes umlaut, it does not in these verbs, because of its comparatively late origin, the older termination having been -ōjon (that is, - $\mathbf{o}-\mathbf{y o n}$ ), which was incapable of causing umlaut, since it was $-\overline{\mathbf{o}}$-, rather than $-\mathbf{j}$ - (that is, $-\mathbf{y}$-), which immediately followed the stem.

Hence it is easy to distinguish verbs of this Class from verbs in -ian of the First Class (116):-

1. Of those verbs there are but few; of these, many.
2. Of those the vowels are always umlauted (usually e or $\mathbf{y}$ ); of these, rarely, and only when the verb was formed from a noun or adjective whose vowel was already umlauted.
3. Of those the stem usually ends in $\mathbf{r}$; of these, in any consonant or consonant combination.
4. Paradigm of the Second Class. - As a typical verb we may select lufian, love.

Sometimes, instead of -ode, the ending is -ade, -ude, or even -ede; but -ode is normal.
120. Weak verbs of the Third Class. - These comprise habban, have; libban (lifian), live; sęeg(e)an, say; hyeg(e)an, think. These are conjugated partly according to the First Class (117), and partly according to the Second (119).
121. Conjugation of habban, have. - Habban, have; nabban, have not (29).

PRETERITIVE PRESENTS.
125. Preteritive presents. - A small group of verbs have strong preterits with present meaning (the old presents being lost), and form new weak preterits from these. They are: witan, know; āgan, own; dugan, avail; unnan, grant; cunnan, know; Jurfan, need; durran (?), dare; sculan, shall; munan, intend; mugan (?), can; nugan (?), suffice; mōtan (?), may.

FORMATION OF WORDS.

142. Prefixes. - Many Old English prefixes are selfexplanatory. Others, with their meanings, are as follows:-
$\overline{\mathbf{a}}-\quad(1)=$ 'up,' 'out' (Ger. er-): āfyllan, fill up, āscēotan, shoot out.
(2) representing on: āweg = on weg, away.
(3) = 'any ': $\overline{\mathbf{a} h w \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{r}, \text { anywhere. }}$
(4) practically meaningless : ābīdan, await.
æf-, see of-.
$\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{g}-=$ 'any,' 'each' $: \overline{\mathbf{x}} \mathbf{g h w a}$, any one.
æt- $(1)=$ 'at,' 'to' (Lat. ad-) : ætwītan, twit, ætgædere, together.
(2) $=$ 'from,' 'away ' : ætwindan, escape from.
and-, qnd- $^{\text {n }}$ found as the prefix of a few nouns; for its meaning see on-.
be- (Ger. be-):
(1) = 'about' : besorgian, be anxious about.
(2) makes an intransitive verb transitive: behycgan, think about, consider.
(3) privative: beniman, take from, deprive, behēafdian, behead.
(4) practically meaningless: bebēodan, command.
ed- (1) = 'counter-', 're-' (Lat. re-): edlēan, recompense.
(2) occasionally for æt-: edwītan, twit.
for- (Ger. ver-, für-, vor-) :
$(1)=$ 'away,' 'up,' 'utterly,' 'very,' denoting destruction effected by the action of the simple verb: fordōn, destroy.
(2) negative: forbēodan, forbid.
(3) $=$ 'falsely' : forswęrian, forswear.
$(4)=$ 'down upon': forsēon, despise.
$(5)=$ 'in behalf of ': forstandan, stand up for.
(6) $=$ 'fore-' : forscēawian, foresee.
fore- $=$ 'fore-' (Lat. præ-) : foresēon, foresee, provide. ge- (Ger. ge-, Lat. con-) :
$(1)=$ 'together': gefēra, companion.
$(2)=$ 'attain by 'the action of the simple verb: thus, winnan, fight, but gewinnan, gain by fighting, conquer.
(3) usual sign of past participle, when the verb lacks any other prefix : gegān, gone.
(4) practically meaningless: gebed, prayer. mis- $=$ ' mis-' : miswęndan, pervert.
$\mathbf{n -}$ (for ne-) $=$ ' not' : n̄ (= ne $+\overline{\mathbf{a}}$, not ever $)$, not at all; nis, is not.
of- $\quad(1)=$ 'off,' 'from' (Lat. de-, ab-, pro-, ex-) : ofspring, offspring.
(2) $=$ 'upon': ofsittan, sit upon, oppress.
(3) denoting offence, injury, death (Lat. ob-): ofみyncan, displease, ofstingan, stab to death.
(4) $=$ 'attain by' the action of the simple verb: offaran, catch up with, ofāscian, learn by asking.
(5) intensive : ofhyngrod, very hungry.
ofer- (1) = 'over' : oferbrдёdan, overspread.
(2) negative : ofergietan, forget.
on-
(1) $=$ 'on,' ' of ': ondrincan, drink of.
(2) $=$ 'from,' 'out of ': onspringan, burst forth.
(3) $=$ 'un-' : onlūcan, unlock.
(4) intensive : onstyrian, agitate.
or- = 'without': orsorg, without anxiety, orwēne, without hope, desperate.

tō- (1) $=$ 'to' : tōcyme, advent.
(2) $=$ 'asunder' (Ger. zer-, Lat. dis-) : tōteran, tear apart, tōenāwan, discern.
un- (1) $=$ 'un-': unforht, fearless, unrim (unnumber), multitude.
(2) $=$ 'bad' : und $\overline{\text { ed }}$, ill deed.
wiðer-(1) = 'again' $:$ wiðertrod, return.
(2) $=$ 'against': wiðersaca, adversary.
ymb- $=$ 'around' (Lat. circum-): ymbgang, circuit, ymbsittan, besiege.
143. Suffixes of masculine nouns. - The more important are -end, -ere, -ing, -ling, besides the originally independent words -dōm, -hād, and -scipe. The first four denote persons; the last three, qualities or abstractions. Besides these, there is a masculine suffix -els, denoting things.
-end (orig. -ende, forming present participles) $=$ '-er,' '-or': scieppend, creator. Contract nouns with this ending are fēond, enemy, frēond, friend. -ere $=$ '-er' : hearpere, harper, bōcere, scribe. -ing $(1)=$ 'son of ' : EXelwulfing, son of Athelwulf, Adaming, son of Adam.
(2) more generally: Cęnting, inhabitant of Kent, cyning, king, pęning, penny. The i sometimes causes umlaut, sometimes not.
-ling: geongling, youngling, hȳrling, hireling.
-dōm (Ger. -thum) $=$ '-dom,' '-ity,' '-ism,' '-ship,' '-acy':
Crīstendōm, Christianity, cynedōm, kingship.
-hād (Ger. -heit, -keit) = '-hood,' '-head,' '-ity': cild-hād, childhood, mægdenhād, virginity. -scipe (Ger. -schaft) $=$ '-ship,' '-hood,' '-ness,' '-ity':
frēondscipe, friendship, fēondscipe, enmity.
-els : byrgels, tomb, rāedels, riddle.
144. Suffixes of feminine nouns. - The chief are -estre, $-n e s,-\boldsymbol{\delta},-\boldsymbol{\jmath} \mathbf{u}(-\boldsymbol{\delta} \mathbf{o})$, -ung (-ing), and the originally independent -rēden.
-estre $=$ '-tress': l्̄ærestre, instructress.
-nes (Ger. -nis) $=$ '-ness,' '-ity,' forms abstracts from the present and past participial stems of verbs, but especially from adjectives: ēhtnes, persecution, forsewennes, contempt, hālignes, holiness.
 This ending was originally -iða, the -i of which caused umlaut.
-ung (occasionally -ing) = '-ing,' '-ation,' forms nouns from the present stem of (usually weak) verbs: blētsung, blessing, costung, temptation.

- rē̈den $=$ '-red,' '-ship,' '-ity': hierdr̄̄̈den, guardianship, guard.

145. Suffixes of neuter nouns. - The two principal, -lāe and -rīce, were originally independent words : -
-lāc (Mod. Eng. -lock, -ledge) : brȳdlāc, wedding. -rīce $=$ 'rule,' 'realm,' 'region': biscoprīce, bishopric, heofonrice, kingdom of heaven.
146. Adjective suffixes. - The principal are -en,-ig,-iht, -isc, and -ol, besides the originally independent -b戸 $\mathbf{e r e}$, -cund, -fæest, -feald, -full, -lēas, -lic, -mōd, -sum, -weard, -węnde, -weorð, -wierð̀e, and -wis. The first four sometimes cause umlaut, sometimes not.
-en (Lat. -inus) $=$ '-en': linen, linen, gylden, golden. -ig (Ger. -ig) $=$ '-y': ēadig, blessed, grēdig, greedy . -iht $\left(\right.$ Ger. -icht) $=^{6}-\mathrm{y}$ ': hrēodiht, reedy, strēniht, stāniht, stony.
-ise (Ger. -isch) $=$ '-ish' : forms adjectives from common, but especially from proper nouns: hǣचenisc, heathenish, Englisc, English.
-ol (Lat. -ulus) $=$ 'disposed to': swicol, deceitful.
-b戸̄re (Ger. -bar, Lat. -ferus, -fer, -ger): cwealmb戸̄re, deadly, lustbǣre, agreeable.
-cund $=$ '-ly': heofondcund, heavenly.
-fæst (Ger. -fest) = 'possessing,' 'firm in ': stędefæst, possessing, or firm in, one's place, steadfast, ārfæst, merciful, pious.
-feald (Ger. -falt) ='‘-fold' : fēowerfeald, fourfold.
-full (Ger. -voll) = '-ful': gelēaffull, faithful, synfull, sinful.
-lēas $($ Ger. -los $)=$ '-less': ārlēas (Ger. ehrlos), infamous. -lic $($ Ger. -lich $)=$ '-ly,' '-al': cynelic, royal, eorølic, terrestrial.
$-\mathbf{m o ̄} \mathbf{~}($ cf. Ger. -müthig) $=$ '-minded': ānmōd (cf. Ger. einmüthig), unanimous, ēaðmōd, humble.
-sum (Ger. -sam) = '-full,' '-some,' '-able': lufsum, lovable, wynsum, winsome.
-weard (cf. Ger. -wärts) = '-ward': hāmweard, homeward, on the way home, andweard, present.
-węnde $=$ '-ary': hālwęnde, salutary.
-weord, -wurठ = '-worthy': ārweor'd, ārwurd, venerable. -wierðe, -wyrðe (cf. Ger. -würdig) = '-worthy': nytwierde, useful.
-wīs $=$ '-wise': gescēadwīs, intelligent, rihtwīs, righteous.
147. Composition. - Compounds are numerous in Old English. In this respect it resembles German and Greek, while Modern English has allowed this power of forming compounds to fall into disuse, largely through the influence of Latin and French. For this reason it would often be easier to make an idiomatic translation into Old English from Greek than from Latin; in its plastic and pictorial quality a page of Old English poetry suggests Homer or Pindar rather than Virgil or Horace, and among Roman poets the earlier, such as Lucretius.

The relation of the first element of compounds to the second should always be noted. The first limits or defines the second, and for this reason takes the stress; but the precise relation of the two elements is now of one sort, now of another. Sometimes it may be expressed by a preposition, sometimes by the sign of a case, sometimes by an adjective: gærs-hoppa, gærsstapa, grasshopper, hopper in or through the grass; han-crēd, cock's-crowing; hēah-ęngel, high-angel, archangel ; gim-stān, gem-stone, jewel.

Although compounds should be studied with reference to the meaning and relation of their components, they should frequently be translated by a simple Modern English word. Thus grershoppa may sometimes be translated by locust; gimstān should never be translated gemstone; and hēahfæeder should always be rendered by patriarch or father.

SYNTAX.

148. Object of this sketch. - The object of the present sketch is not to present a complete view of Old English syntax, even in outline, but rather to call attention to such peculiarities as are most likely to cause difficulty. Many constructions common to all the cultivated European languages, especially to the inflected ones, will either be passed over without notice or but briefly touched upon.

Nouns.
149. Subject. - The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative case. For that of an infinitive, see 169.
150. Predicate nominative. - A predicate noun (or adjective), denoting the same person or thing as its subject, agrees with it in case. Examples: ic eom Apollonius; fæt ic gewurde w $\overline{\boldsymbol{x} d l a}$.
151. Apposition. - A noun annexed to another noun, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with it in case. Examples: and wēnde dæt hēo Diana wāere, sēo gyden; Arcestrates (gen.) dohtor $\boldsymbol{\delta} æ \mathbf{s}$ cyninges.

Note hie sume $=$ some of them.
152. Vocative. - The vocative, which is identical in form with the nominative, is used in direct address. It may be preceded by an interjection, the second personal pronoun, or a possessive pronoun; this possessive pronoun, when followed by an adjective, usually takes before the latter the demonstrative pronoun se. Examples: $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \bar{u} \mathbf{s} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$ Neptune; min se lēofesta fæder.
153. Genitive with nouns. - The genitive is distinctively an adnominal case; that is, its principal function is to limit the meaning of a noun. Its sign is of. It denotes various relations, not all of which can be strictly defined.
a) Relationship: ūre ealra mōdor.
b) Source: sunnan and mōnan lēoman; ə戸̄re

c) Subject. The noun in the genitive stands for the author of the action denoted by the noun upon which the genitive is dependent. Example: fīnra halgena earnungum.
d) Object. This may be known by the possibility of turning the noun upon which it is dependent into a cognate verb, when the noun in the genitive will become the object of that verb; for example, in Frean eqesan, Frēan is an obj. gen., because, if we substitute for the noun egesa, fear, the verb fear, the noun Lord becomes the object of the verb. Examples: $\boldsymbol{x} s$ dæges līehtinge; līfes tilungum; unscęððigra beswicend; lēswe scēapa and nēata; hyht h̄̄̈le.
e) Cause (denoted by for): lēan סissa swēsenda.
f) Characteristic: meregreotan $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} 1$ ces hīwes; trēowum missenlicra cynna; setl his mægenðrymnesse. Here, perhaps, belongs: werhādes and wīfhādes hē gescēop hie.
g) Specification of time: $\overline{\mathbf{a}} \boldsymbol{n e s} \mathbf{m} \overline{\boldsymbol{o}} \boldsymbol{n} \boldsymbol{\gamma} \mathbf{e s}$ fierst.
h) Specification of place: gārsecges igland (Latin influence).
i) Unclassified: $\boldsymbol{\partial} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{re}$ nēowolnesse brādnes;

154. Partitive genitive. - The genitive denotes the whole, with words denoting a part.
a) With nouns: unrīm ceastra; fela geeara; lȳthwōn cwicera cynna.
b) With pronouns: manna $\overline{\text { renigne; hiera nān; }}$ hwilc ēower; gumena gehwæne; hwæthwugu swilces; sē manna. Note the peculiar anna gehwilc, each one.
c) With numerals: eahta fōta; fēower hund wintra.
d) With superlatives: beeacna beorhtost. Similarly, with a cognate noun, to denote eminence: dryhtna Dryhten.
155. Genitive with adjectives. - The genitive is used to define an adjective with respect to the part or relation in which the quality is conceived. Such adjectives are frequently akin to verbs which take the genitive (156), and sometimes correspond to Latin adjectives of inclination in $-a x$. They may be roughly classified as follows:-
a) Want: dēllēas mines reenes; idel and unnyt gōda (154. b) gehwilces.
b) Fulness: berende (Lat. ferax) missenlicra fugla.
c) Desire: $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{t e s}$ georn.
d) Retentiveness: fæsthafol (Lat. tenax) minna gōda.
e) Knowledge: wordes wīs.
156. Genitive with verbs. - The genitive is used with many verbs, mostly such as denote mental action, but also with those of cessation and refusal, and some others. Frequently the underlying notion is a partitive one; that is, the object is conceived as affected in part.
a) Desire: frifes wilnedon.
b) Request: biddende minra gōda.
c) Rejoicing: bæs se hlanca gefeah.
d) Experiment: wæda cunnedan.
e) Use: eardes brūcã.
f) Care: giemden $\boldsymbol{\partial} æ \boldsymbol{s} \boldsymbol{d} \boldsymbol{g e s}$.
g) Supposition or belief: nōhtes ęlles wēndon; бæs geliefan.

i）Granting：āra unnan．
j）Refusal：tīסe forwierndest． k）Cessation：geswāc his weorces． l）Awaiting： $\boldsymbol{f} æ \boldsymbol{s}$ wordes bād．
m）Approaching：cēoles nēosan．
n）Producing：gāsta strēonan．
157．Adverbial genitive．－Certain adverbial relations may be expressed by the genitive（cf．71）．Example： hine gewęnde $\boldsymbol{\partial}$ æs weges．

1．The demonstrative dæt is frequently used in the genitive in various adverbial senses．Thus of time， סæs $(\boldsymbol{J e})=$ from the time that，after，afterwards； of manner，$=$ as far as，as；of cause，＝for this， because；etc．

158．Genitive with prepositions．－The genitive is occa－ sionally used with certain prepositions，such as wi⿱亠乂，tō， and wana．Examples：wið סæs fæstengeates； tō $\boldsymbol{\partial} æ \mathrm{~s}$ ；ānes wana siextig（78．5）．

159．Genitive with other cases．－Verbs which take a genitive denoting the thing，may also take a dative or accusative of the person． a）With dative（including reflexives，184）：him （164．a）ne ūðe（156．i）God lęngran līfes； nolde gē mē（dat．）w $\overline{\boldsymbol{e}} \mathbf{d a}$ tīoian（156．i）；gē mē（dat．）$\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{tes}$ forwierndon（156．j）；Apollonius hiere (164. c) $\boldsymbol{\partial}$ æs Dancode; ne ondrēd (156. h)

b) With accusative (including impersonals, 190): סē (acc.) $\overline{\mathrm{o}} \mathrm{htes}$ āxian; hine fultumes bēdon; miltsa biddan wuldres Āldor (acc.); סegnas dearle gelyste (190) gārgewinnes.
160. Dative in general. - The dative denotes the indirect object, usually the person to or for or with reference to whom something is done. When used with verbs (164), the general notion of the verb may often be regarded as implying some sort of giving (or its opposite), if this term be employed in its widest sense.

1. The dative is sometimes used for the instrumental (174): cleopode micelre stefne.
2. Dative of benefit or interest. - The sign of this dative is for. Examples: scipu ēow eallum ic wyrce. Perhaps also: dinre eordan ne rīñ.
3. Akin to this is the reflexive dative (184): dret hie him (for themselves) w̄̄̈pnu worhten.
4. Similar, too, is the dative of possession, which, without much change in the sense, might be replaced by the genitive: him fēollon tēaras of đَēm ēagum (so Ger. ihm fielen Thränen von den Augen); him męn feaht on lāst; wulfum tō willan.
5. Dative of deprivation. - Some verbs of deprivation (cf. 177) take the dative of the object removed, sometimes with an accusative of the person from whom. Examples: hē hine unscrȳdde $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{m}$ healf. an sciccelse; $\boldsymbol{f}$ ingum ongierede and genacodode.
6. Dative of resemblance or approach. - This is self-explanatory.
a) With verbs: geflit cymr $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{m}$ beheald. endum.
b) With adjectives (cf. 165): fugole gelicost.
7. Dative with various verbs. - Such are verbs of (160) -
a) Giving or imparting: סearfum d戸̄ælan.
b) Speaking: hiere āreahte; him gecỹðan.
c) Thanking: Gode סanciende.
d) Promising: behēt mīnum lārēowe.
e) Serving and benefiting: hē him ōēnode; fręmme gehwilc $\overline{\boldsymbol{o}} \boldsymbol{\delta} \mathbf{r u m}$; him fēng God on fultum; manigum genyhtsumian.
f) Obeying and following: gehiersumian mīnum willan; de hiere folgode.
g) Pitying: gemiltsa me
h) Requiting: forgieldan $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{ghwilcum}$.
i) Ruling: б̄edum racian. Similarly, $\overline{\mathbf{y}} \boldsymbol{\delta} \mathbf{u m}$ stilde.
j) Receiving: onfēng $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{re}$ wununge.
k) Pleasing and suiting: him eallum licode; $\boldsymbol{\delta} \overline{\mathbf{e}}$ gedafenað.
l) Seeming: mē $\boldsymbol{\text { бynč}}$.
$m$ ) Opposing: worulde wiosacan.
n) Betraying or deserting: swīcaঠ $\boldsymbol{\delta} \overline{\mathbf{e}}$.
o) Using (rare): notã cræfte mīnum.
8. Dative with adjectives. - The dative is chiefly employed with adjectives signifying dear, generous, useful, obedient, etc., and the opposite. Examples: lidwèrigum ēste; Gode סone lēofan fæder (the father dear to God); behēfe ic com cyninge; folcum fracor.
9. The dative of want or deprivation (cf. 162) is also found here: Gode orfeorme.
10. Dative with prepositions. - The dative is by far the commonest case with prepositions. Examples would be superfluous.
11. After the preposition on (in), certain adjectives, like mid and ufanweard, agree with the following noun, instead of being treated like nouns governing it in the genitive, as are their counterparts in Mod. Eng. Examples: on midre $\overline{\boldsymbol{\delta}} \overline{\mathbf{r}} \mathbf{e} \overline{\mathbf{x}}$ (so Lat. in medio mari, but Mod. Eng. in the midst of the sea) ; on $\boldsymbol{\delta} \overline{\mathfrak{x}} \mathbf{m}$ fæstene ufanweardum.
12. Dative absolute. - A noun and a participle, not involved in the main construction of the sentence, may stand by themselves in the dative, and constitute an adverbial clause, most frequently of time. This construction is imitated from the Latin ablative absolute. Examples: onfangenre his blētsunge; סisum eallum fus gedonum.
13. Accusative after transitive verbs. - The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative. Examples: hē swang fone top; ealne nōrd del genōmon.
14. A special case of the foregoing is the cognate accusative, in which the object is etymologically akin to the verb: libbad hiera lif.
15. Subject accusative. - The subject of an infinitive is put in the accusative. Examples: geseah hē sumne fiscere gān; hē gehierde ofone blissesang ūpāstīgan.
16. Accusative of extent. - The accusative may denote extent of time or space. Example: wæs se storm ealne done dæg swīde micel and strang.
17. Accusative after impersonals. - Impersonals (190) of appetite or passion govern an accusative of the person suffering. Example: mē hyngrede.
18. Accusative after prepositions. - Some prepositions always govern the accusative, others only under certain circumstances. Those of the former class are geond, $\overline{\boldsymbol{o}} \boldsymbol{\delta}$, Jurh, and $\mathbf{y m b}(\mathbf{e})$; of the latter, a large number that more frequently take the dative (166).
19. Of the second class, on (in) is perhaps the commonest representative, taking the dative when denoting rest in, the accusative when denoting motion towards; this distinction, however, is not invariably observed. Examples of accusative: inēode on $\boldsymbol{\partial} \boldsymbol{\text { t }} \mathbf{b æ \boldsymbol { f }}$; in $\boldsymbol{\partial} æ \boldsymbol{t}$ mynster éode.

Exceptions to the rule are: on done seoforan dæg; mid tone bisceop.
173. Two accusatives. - Verbs signifying to make, to name, to regard, and the like, may take a predicate accusative besides the object accusative. Examples: God hine (obj. acc.) geworhte wundorlicne and fægerne; God geciegde ōā drȳgnesse (obj. acc.) eorðan; hwonne gesāwon wē $\boldsymbol{\delta} \bar{e}$ (obj. acc.) hungrigne?
174. Instrumental in general. - The instrumental, which in form is sometimes (especially in the plural) indistinguishable from the dative (see 160.1), denotes manner, means, instrument, or material. Its sign is by or with. Examples: geseah blídum andwlitan; gestaðolade strangum mihtum; gefæstnade folmum; gefretwade foldan scēatas leomum and lẹafum.

This case is more common in poetry than in prose, where its place is often taken by mid with the dative; even in poetry, the simple instrumental sometimes alternates with the dative accompanied by mid, e.g. (Andreas, 320) sārewide occurs in the same construction as mid oferhygdum. Occasionally the instrumental is employed where Modern English would use an accusative: mundum brugdon, they waved (with) their hands.

The instrumental being one of the more difficult cases to master, a few of its regular combinations are separately appended:-
a) With verbs of journeying and transporting, where its sign may almost be regarded as in: cēolum līðan; fæømum fęrian; síde gesōhte. So with libban: drēamum lifdon.
b) With verbs of speaking, to indicate voice or language (see also 160.1): wordum cwæd; ondsweorodon gencwidum.
c) With past participles, generally preceding the latter (common in poetry): sweordum gehēawen; hilde gesēged; dōme gedȳrsod.
d) With adjectives (generally in poetry), to denote in what respect, or sometimes instrumentality: federum hrēmig; ęcgum gecoste; mundum frēorig; synnum wunde. These last two afford the metrical combinations exhibited in 217. 1-among the commonest in Old English.
175. Instrumental with prepositions. - Mid, which frequently takes the dative, is sometimes found with the instrumental, especially in the Anglian dialect; so occasionally for. Examples: mid ealle; mid micle sige; mid $\boldsymbol{\partial} \overline{\mathbf{y}}$ rēadestan gōdwębbe; for hw $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$.
176. Adverbial instrumental. - The instrumental may denote adverbial relations, especially time when. Examples: sume dæge; $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\mathbf{y}}$ seoforan dæge; $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \boldsymbol{l} \boldsymbol{c e}$ gēare; word stunde āhōf.

1. It may also denote the number of times: siextiene sifum.
2. The instrumental may denote the way: $\overline{\boldsymbol{y}} \overline{\mathbf{y}}$ ilcan wege.
3. Instrumental of deprivation. - Some verbs of deprivation may take an object of which in the instrumental (cf. 162). Examples: mā̃mum bed̄̄eled; $\bar{x} h t u m$ benǣmde.
4. Instrumental of difference. - The instrumental denotes the measure of difference. Examples: micle lęngran; $\boldsymbol{\delta} \bar{y}$ bealdran; bon cymlīcor; stręngre eallum $\boldsymbol{\partial} \overline{\mathscr{x}} \mathrm{m} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{rged} \overline{n u m}$.

Adjectives.

179. Agreement of adjectives. - Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case. This applies also to demonstrative, possessive, and indefinite pronouns, and to participles, when used as adjectives. When used predicatively, however, participles may be uninflected.
180. Strong and weak adjectives. - For the distinction in the use of strong and weak adjectives, see 55.
181. Adjectives as nouns. - An adjective may be used as a noun (see 55). Examples: 齐 ymbsittendan; hwā giefơ $\boldsymbol{\partial} \overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{m}$ uncū才an līfes fultum.

Adverbs.
182. Use of adverbs. - Adverbs qualify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs.
183. Two negatives. - Two or more negatives strengthen the negation, instead of making an affirmative. Example: đīn nis nān wiht.

Pronouns.

184. Reflexive pronouns. - The reflexive pronoun (82), in the dative (161. 1; cf. 159) or accusative, is used with certain verbs whose counterparts in Mod. Eng. would not necessarily require it.
a) Dative: worhton him hōcas; b̄̄̈r him eaxe on handa; him land curon; gewāt him; far $\boldsymbol{\delta} \bar{e}$; cierde wē $\overline{\mathrm{u}} \mathrm{s}$.
b) Accusative: hē geręste hine; dæt trēow brāt hit; bewęnde hine; hine gemęngde; ēow fysan.
185. Relative pronouns. - For these see 87.

Verbs.

186. Forms of the verb. - Old English verbs are either transitive or intransitive. They have two voices, - active and passive; three moods, - indicative, optative, and imperative - besides the infinitive, gerund, and participles; and five tenses, - present, preterit, perfect, pluperfect, and future. The uses of these forms correspond, in general, to those of the same forms in other languages.
187. Voices. - The forms of the active voice are given in 95 ; those of the passive are formed by adding the past participle to the appropriate tense of wesan (bēon), be, or weorðan, become.
188. Tenses. - Only two independent tenses are distinguished by their stems, - the present and the preterit. The present may also be used for the future; the preterit, for any of the three past tenses. Otherwise the distinctions of tense are indicated by means of auxiliaries, as in Modern English: the future being formed by the infinitive with sculan, shall (133), and willan, will (139); the perfect and pluperfect, by the past participles with the appropriate tenses of habban, have (121), in the case of transitive verbs, and of wesan, be (138), in the case of intransitives.
189. Agreement. - A finite verb agrees with its subject in number and person. Exceptions are:-
190. When the subject consists of two nouns denoting essentially the same thing, united by a conjunction, the verb in agreement may be in the singular: sie sibb and ge才wāernes betweoh ūs.
191. A collective noun may take a verb in the plural: sēo cnēoris wāgon and l्̄युdon.
192. A plural verb, with a predicate in the plural, may be introduced by a neuter singular: $\boldsymbol{\delta} \boldsymbol{x} \mathbf{t}$ wēron ęngla gāstas; hit donne wæ्æron mine wæteru.

Note. - The subject is sometimes to be supplied (cf. 190) : hēt ヵæt lēoht Dæg.
190. Impersonals. - Impersonal verbs are those whose subject is an implied hit, it. They are often transitive, taking an object in the dative or accusative (164. $k, l ; 171)$. Examples: mē $\boldsymbol{\delta} \mathbf{y} \mathbf{n c \delta} \boldsymbol{j}$; mē hyngrede; swā ges $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathrm{lde} \overline{\mathbf{i} u}$; hū hyre æet beaduwe gespēow. Sometimes they take two cases: pegnas gelyste gārgewinnes (159. b).
191. Indicative. - The indicative has the functions common to it in most languages.
192. Optative in general. - The optative, sometimes called the subjunctive, is used to express an action or state simply as conceived by the mind. It is employed either in independent sentences or in subordinate clauses. Of these subordinate clauses there are two principal kinds, - substantive or noun clauses, and adverbial clauses. Of these, the noun clauses,
 Whenever the conjunction dæt can be translated in order that or so that, it introduces an adverbial clause; otherwise, a noun clause. Other adverbial clauses are those of place, time, and manner. Less frequent are adjective clauses, introduced by or implying a relative pronoun.
193. Optative in independent clauses. - Under this head falls the use of the optative (a) to express a command or an emphatic wish; (b) in doubtful questions implying a negative answer; and (c) in hypothetical sentences.
a) Command: bēo nū lēoht; ādl dē fornime; gān wē sēcean.
b) Question: hwæt Jonne mē fręmede gedeorf mīn?

194. Optative in noun clauses. - The noun clause takes the place either of the subject (or predicate nominative) or of the object of a principal clause.

The object clause is commonest after verbs of knowledge, affirmation, command, and desire, such as know, say, order, wish, etc.
a) Subject clause: līcaঠ סē סæt Apollonius \%us

b) Object clause: gewite hwæt se geonga mann sie; ne meahte findan hwilc hiera forliden męnn cy $\bar{y} \boldsymbol{f}$; ic wysse $\boldsymbol{\partial} æ \mathrm{t}$ ic ęft forlidennesse gefare.

Note. - Certainty is rendered by the indicative: ic oncnāwe

195. Optative by attraction. - This is a name given to the optative found in clauses following another optative. Examples: sprytte (193. a) sēo eorðe trēow, Jæs s $\bar{x} d$ sīe on him selfum; wēn is dæt gemiltsie; fret sum gestrēon ic mē begiete (196. f), Janan ic mē āfēde.

196. Optative in adverbial clauses. - These are clauses of place (where), of time (before, until, when, while), of manner (as if), conditional (if), concessive (though), final (in order that), and consecutive (so that). Hypothetical or indefinite character in some measure attaches to the optative in each.
 wille.

c) Manner: swilce hē cuma w $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}} \mathbf{r e}$.
d) Conditional: gif $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \mathbf{u}$ ne finde nænne, węnd סonne hider ongēan; swā hit $\boldsymbol{\partial e}$ ne mislīcie. But sometimes indicative: gif $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \bar{u} \mathbf{~ m e}$ gelíefst.
e) Concessive: סēah $\boldsymbol{\delta} \bar{u}$ stille sīe.
f) Final: and gesętte hie on ס戸̄еre heofonan, ðæt hie scinen ofer corðan. So with סæs-ðe:
 twēonie.
 bēo hāl.
197. Optative in adjective clauses. - Whenever a sentence introduced by an actual or virtual relative implies an element of doubt, it may take the optative. Examples: gecēose ænne, hwilcne yū wille (hwilcne is a virtual relative); swā-hwæt-swā סū wille.
198. Imperative. - The imperative is used in commands, sometimes with the second personal pronoun, sometimes without. Examples: bēo blī̀e mid ūs; wite $\boldsymbol{\delta} \bar{u}$; gē ęfthwęrfã tō ciricean.
199. Infinitive. - The infinitive is construed as a neuter noun, the subject or object of a finite verb.

When the object, it may itself have a subject noun or pronoun in the accusative (169).
a) Subject (or pred. nom., 150): micel hīeñ and sceamu hit is nellan.
b) Object: nellan wesan; hēt hyre oinenne hēafod onwrídan.

1. An object infinitive is sometimes used for purposes of specification. With verbs of motion this may often be translated by the present participle, occasionally by the infinitive of purpose ( $=$ in order to). Examples: cōmon līðan; gewāt him gangan; fēran gāsta strēonan (purpose).
2. Gerund. - The gerund may usually be translated by the Mod. Eng. infinitive, in a variety of senses. Examples: cōmon mīnre dohtor tō biddanne; land swī̀e feorr tō gesēceanne; $\boldsymbol{\partial} \bar{a}$ ēstas him beforan leqgde de hē him tō bēodanne hæfde.

Prepositions.

201. Cases governed. - For the cases governed by prepositions, see 158, 166, 172, 175.
202. The preposition sometimes follows its object, or immediately precedes the verb, and at times is difficult to distinguish from an adverb, or a prefix of the verb. Examples: ฮe (87. c) Øū æfter āxodest; ฮe дй swā wel wí才 gedēst.

Conjunctions.

202. Correlatives. - Some of the more common correlatives are the following:-
a) ge. . . . . . ge, both . . . . and.
b) бe...... $\boldsymbol{\delta e}$ whether ...or.
c) nē. . . . . . nē, neither. . . .nor.

e) गēah . . . . rēah, though . . . (yet).
f) swā-swā . . swā, so . . . . . as.
g) swā . . . . . swā, the . . . . . the.

PROSODY.

203. Old English verse stichic. - Old English verse is rarely strophic, but almost without exception stichic; that is, consists of ungrouped lines, following each other as in Modern English blank verse.
204. The line and the hemistich. - The line of poetry consists of two hemistichs, separated by the cæsura. Example:-

bord and brād swyrd, brāne helmas.

The hemistich may be either normal or expanded. A normal hemistich contains two metrical feet. Ex-ample:-

cēne under cumblum.

An expanded hemistich contains three metrical feet. Example:-

> swīð mōd sinces āhte.
205. The foot. - A metrical foot is a portion of a line containing one primary stress. The syllable receiving the primary stress may or may not be fol-- lowed or preceded by one or more lighter or slurred syllables.

Of the lighter syllables following or preceding a primary stress, one may, under certain circumstances, receive a secondary stress (23). A syllable which receives neither primary nor secondary stress is called unstressed.
206. Stressed and unstressed syllables. - The primary stress nearly always falls upon a long syllable; this long syllable may, however, be represented by two syllables, of which the first is short, and the second so light as to admit of syncopation. The substitution of two such short syllables for a single long one is called resolution.

A long syllable is one which contains a long vowel or diphthong, or a short vowel followed by two consonants. A short syllable is one which contains a short vowel followed by a single consonant (4). Long and short syllables, when stressed, are represented in metrical schemes by the macron, - , and the breve, $\cup$, respectively. Stressed syllables are indicated by the acute or grave accent, according as the stress is primary or secondary. Unstressed syllables, whether short or long, are represented by the oblique cross, $x$.

The syllable which receives the primary stress is usually the root syllable of a word, while the lighter or slurred syllables comprise the terminations, enclitics, and proclitics ; occasionally, however, the second element of a compound word is reckoned as a slurred syllable, though usually it takes a secondary stress.
207. Classification of feet. - The terms iambic, trochaic, etc., are used analogically, with reference to stress, and not, as in Greek and Latin prosody, with primary reference to quantity. This being understood, Old English metrical feet may be classified as follows:-

1. Monosyllabic: The monosyllabic foot regularly consists of a long syllable under the primary stress, 1 . This foot is never found except in conjunction with one of the dactylic type having a secondary stress ( $1 . h$ to 1. $k, 216$ ).
2. Disyllabic: The disyllabic foot may be either trochaic, $\lfloor\times$, or iambic, $\times \underset{\perp}{ }$. In the trochaic foot, the unstressed syllable may be replaced by a long syllable under the secondary stress. The dactyl formed by the resolution of the trochee may be called the light dactyl, to distinguish it from the heavy or normal dactyl, in which the first syllable is long.
3. Trisyllabic: The trisyllabic foot is either dactylic, $\underline{\angle} \times \times$, or anapæstic, $\times \times \perp$. If dactylic, either the second or third syllable has in some cases secondary stress.
4. Polysyllabic: If tetrasyllabic, this foot resembles
 If it contains a greater number of syllables, it is still essentially dactylic or anapæstic in effect, $\angle \times \times \times \ldots$, or ... $\times \times \times$ 人.

In any of the foregoing feet, resolution may take place, thus apparently increasing the number of typical syllables.
208. Anacrusis. - Before hemistichs beginning with a primary stress, one or more unstressed syllables may occur. These unstressed syllables constitute what is known as the anacrusis. It is rare at the beginning of the second hemistich, but more frequent before the first.
209. Expanded hemistichs. - These are formed by prefixing a foot of the form $\leq \times \ldots$ (less frequently $\angle$, and rarely in the first hemistich $\times \mathscr{1}$ ) to a regular hemistich of two stresses. Expanded lines are employed in passages of peculiar elevation and solemnity, or expressive of unwonted agitation. The expanded hemistich has three stresses, instead of the normal two, since the prefixed portion differs from the anacrusis in having a primary stress. As a rule, the first and second stresses of the first hemistich, when expanded, take alliteration, while in the second hemistich the place of the alliterative syllable is unchanged, coinciding normally with the (new) second stress. Example:- bēaga and beorhtra mā̆ma, hī pæt pǣere beorhtan idese.
210. Alliteration. - Alliteration is a poetical ornament which is a distinctive feature of Old English verse. It consists in the employment of the same or similar sounds at the beginning of two or more syllables which receive the primary stress. The second hemistich contains one such alliterative syllable, as a rule that which has the first primary stress ; the first hemistich has regularly two, though frequently only one. The alliterative sound must be the same throughout, if consonantal; if vocalic, it is usually different in the three syllables. Examples are:-
a) grame $\boldsymbol{g}$ ū ${ }^{\text {offrecan, }} \boldsymbol{g}$ āras sẹndon.
b) on $\ddagger æ$ æ $d x g r e d$ sylf, dynedan scildas.
c) earn $\bar{c} t e s ~ g e o r n, ~ \bar{u}$ rigfeđera.

In expanded lines, the additional foot frequently takes alliteration, thus removing it from one of its normal positions.
211. Alliteration in relation to stress. - The accentual principles observed by Old English poets in their management of alliteration virtually reduce themselves to one: that the most important syllables of the most important words should receive primary stress. It must be borne in mind, however, that the stress is sometimes rhetorical, that is, depends not so much upon the intrinsic weight of the word as upon that which belongs to it in virtue of its relation to other words in the same sentence. For example, a preposition might be expected to have less intrinsic weight than a following noun, yet instances occur where the preposition alliterates.

One general rule is that if a noun and a verb are found in the same hemistich, it is the noun that alliterates.
212. Difference between the two hemistichs. - The first hemistich frequently differs from the second, not only in the number of its alliterative syllables, but also in that of the unstressed syllables admitted between two primary stresses, or in the form of anacrusis.
213. Rime. - Rime and various forms of assonance are occasionally employed by Old English poets, sometimes for the purpose of uniting more closely the two halves of the same line, less frequently to associate the second half of a line with the first or second half of the following line, rarely in formulas or compounds within the same hemistich.
214. Masculine and feminine rime. - Masculine or monosyllabic rime is perfect, when the riming vowels are identical, and are followed by the same consonants or consonant combinations. Example (from Bēowulf ) : -

èode yrremōd : him of êagum stōd.

Feminine or polysyllabic (usually disyllabic) rime is perfect when the first riming syllables are perfect masculine rimes and the following syllables are identical. Example:-

> scildburh sc̄̄̈ron, scēotend w̄̄xron.

There are also various sorts of imperfect rime.
215. Kennings. - A characteristic ornament of Old English, as well as of early Teutonic poetry in general, are the kennings. This term, which is of Norse origin, designates those synonyms or periphrastic phrases which are employed to diversify the expression of a thought, or to avoid the repetition of the same word, usually a noun. Many of these are striking metaphors, but by no means all; some, though metaphorical in their origin, were undoubtedly so familiar to the poet and audience that their peculiar significance was overlooked, and they were regarded as stereotyped and convenient synonyms. Examples of kennings for God are: ārfæst cyning, míhtig dryhten, metod, frēa ælmihtig.
216. Ordinary sequences of long and short syllables. ${ }^{1}$ Before proceeding to examine the metrical constitution of the hemistich, it is desirable to consider the ordinary sequences of long and short syllables in Old English, and particularly in Old English poetry.

1. Long syllables followed by short or slurred syllables. A long stressed syllable may be followed:-
a) by a derivative or inflectional syllable: scūras $\leq x$
b) by a monosyllabic proclitic : eft tō
c) by a monosyllabic prefix: mōd $\overline{\mathbf{a}}($ réted) $\leq x$
d) by a derivative or inflectional syllable + a monosyllabic prefix or proclitic: cēnra tō $\angle \times x$ $e)$ by a disyllabic proclitic or prefix: fȳnd ofer(wunnen)
-x $\times$
f）by a monosyllabic proclitic + a monosyllabic pre－ fix：ford on ge（rihte） －$\times x$
g）by two monosyllabic words：him $\boldsymbol{\gamma} \overline{\text { à se }} \leq \times \times$ $h)$ by two syllables，derivative or inflectional：mōd－

igre

$i)$ by the second element of a compound word，with or without a derivative syllable interposed：－

| （a）scīrm̄̄led | 立× |
| :---: | :---: |
| （ $\beta$ ）hildelēod | ＜x |

$j$ ）by a disyllabic word，with the stress upon its second syllable：nēar ætstōp（Bēow．）

ニ×シ
$k$ ）by a derivative or inflectional syllable + a mono－ syllabic word：ēaдe mæg

2．Long syllables preceded by short or slurred syl－ lables．A long stressed syllable may be preceded：－ a）by a monosyllabic prefix ：gefēoll $\times$＜
b）by a monosyllabic proclitic：才urh mīn（e）$\times$ 」
c）by a derivative or inflectional syllable：（frym） $\boldsymbol{\text { a }}$ God d）by a derivative or inflectional ending + a mono－ syllabic prefix or proclitic：（hlanc）a gefeah $\times \times \leq$ e）by a disyllabic ending：（lār）ena gōd（Bēow．）
f）by a disyllabic proclitic：syбxan frymə（e）$\times \times$ ノ
g）by two monosyllabic words： $\boldsymbol{\partial a} \boldsymbol{\partial} \mathbf{e} \mathbf{h w i ̄ l}(\mathbf{e}) \times \times \leq$ 3．Long syllables followed by long or stressed syl－ lables．In addition to the cases instanced under 1．$h$ and $i$ ，which belong under the head of secondary stress， stressed syllables proper are here to be considered．A long syllable may be followed： a）by a monosyllabic word：brād swyrd $\measuredangle$（ノニ）
b）when a monosyllable，by the first syllable of a disyllabic word：dōm $\overline{\mathbf{a} g}(\mathbf{o n}) \quad$ ノニ（ユン）
c）when a monosyllable，by the first syllable of a tri－ syllabic word：sang hild（elēō）
$d$ ）when the second syllable of a disyllabic word，by the first syllable of a disyllabic word：（ge）gān hæfd（on）
$e)$ when the first syllable of a polysyllabic word（often a compound），by the second syllable of the same word： nïoheard，burhlēod（um）

4．Short stressed syllables followed by short or slurred syllables．A short，stressed syllable may be followed：－ a）by a single unstressed syllable，forming with it two metrical syllables：cyning b）by an unstressed syllable，forming with it the met－ rical equivalent of a single long syllable，and capable of being substituted for the latter in every position：æðe（le）

\text { ¿× } \times(=\underline{\prime})
$$

Compounds are metrically regarded，for the most part， as composed of two independent words，but their length， taken in connection with the invariability of their typi－ cal forms，restricts the employment of certain compounds to particular metrical schemes．Thus，compounds like hilden $\overline{\text { ed }}$ dran are adapted to hemistichs of the trochaic type， $\mathscr{\triangle} \times 1 \leq \times$ ；those like burhlēodum to the type ノノイメメ。

217．Constitution of the hemistich．－There are five normal types of the hemistich，which may be called respectively（cf．207）the 1）trochaic（dactylic），2） the iambic（anapæstic），3）the iambic－trochaic，4）the monosyllabic－bacchic（or－cretic），and the 5）bacchic－ monosyllabic．Types 4 and 5 occasionally become tro－ chaic－bacchic and bacchic－trochaic respectively．

Every hemistich ends either in a stressed syllable，or in a stressed syllable followed by a single short syllable （exceptionally by two short syllables，as in 216．4．b）．

Occasionally a greater number of unstressed syllables than three occur together，but without destroying the character of the verse as belonging to one of the fore－ going types．

218．Constitution of the various types．－1．The first or trochaic（dactylic）type is formed by the union of two feet like those found in 1．$a$ to 1．$g$ above．Thus：－

| biddan wylle | $\leq \times 1 \leq x$ |
| :--- | :---: |
| cwiccra cynna | $\leq \times \times 1 \leq x$ |
| ealde ge geonge | $\leq \times x \mid \leq x$ |

With anacrusis（208）：－

\text { ofre sundoryrfes } \quad \times \times 1 \leq \times \mid \leq \times
$$

Occasionally，by the introduction of two consecutive long syllables，as in 3．$e$ ，there occur hemistichs of these forms：－

| burh scāron | ノニ1ヒメ |
| :---: | :---: |
| helmas and hupseax | ニメ |

A short stressed syllable is rare：－
ārfæşt cyning $ニ \times 1$ し×

2．The second or iambic（anapæstic）type is formed by the union of two feet like those found in 2．$a$ to $2 . g$ above．Thus：－

| se hȳhsta d̄̄］ | $\times$ ¢ $1 \times 1$ |
| :---: | :---: |
| berat linde for＇ | $\times \times \underline{1} \times \underline{1}$ |
| nū ic gumena gehwrne | $\times \times$ ¢ $\times 1 \times \times$ ¢ $\times$ |

With extra unstressed syllables in the first foot（207． 4）：－ bæt hē in bæt būrgeteld $\times \times \times \times$＜ $\mid \times$ 」

3．The third or iambic－trochaic type is formed by the union of two feet like those found in 1．a to $1 . g$ and 2 ． $a$ to $2 . g$ respectively．Thus：－

and cQmpwige }\times\mathrm{ < | ユ and gè dōm \overline{agon }\times\times\perp1_\times

Rarely a short stressed syllable ：－

| an |  |
| :---: | :---: |
| æt ¢ām æscplegan | $\times \times$－ |

With extra unstressed syllables in the first foot：－ be hie ofercuman mihton $\times \times \times \times$ 〔 $\times 1 \leq \times$

It will be observed that where two long syllables meet in the middle of the hemistich there is such a sequence as in 3．$a$ to 3．e．

4．The fourth or monosyllabic－bacchic type is formed by the union of a monosyllabic foot with such as are found in 1．$h$ and 1．$i(a)$ ．Thus：－

\begin{aligned}
& \text { mægđ̃ mōdigre } \\
& \text { hælè̛ higerōfe } \\
& \text {-1ノニx } \\
& \text { く }
\end{aligned}
$$

Similarly，the monosyllabic－cretic takes groups like 1．$i$ （ $\beta$ ），1．j，and 1．$k$ for the second foot：－

\text { sang hildelēơ } \quad \leq 1 \leq \times \simeq
$$

An example of the trochaic－bacchic type（found only in first hemistichs）is ：－

\text { stōpon styrnmōde } \quad \angle \times \mid \simeq ニ \times

Where two long syllables belonging to different feet come together in the pure type，we have various cases under 3 ，the one above being under $c$ ．

5．The fifth or bacchic－monosyllabic type is formed by the union of such feet as are found in 1．$h$ and $1 . i$ （a）with a monosyllabic foot．Thus：－

\begin{aligned}
& \text { scīrmāled swyrd } \\
& \text { sigerōfe hæleð́ }
\end{aligned} \quad \text { ভこ } \times 1 \leq

219．Frequency of the various types．－The relative frequency of the various types is indicated by their order in the last paragraph，though Types 2 and 3 are not far from equal．Thus，in the poem of Judith， the percentages are，in round numbers，as follows，not counting expanded lines，which mostly belong to Type 1 （209）：－

220．A specimen of scansion．－The following passage （Judith，164－175），accompanied by the scheme of its scansion，will serve to illustrate the metrical principles contained in the foregoing paragraphs：－

 syð゙すan hie ongēaton bret wæs Iūdith cumen eft to ē＇lle，and $\begin{aligned} \\ \text { da } \\ \text { ofostlice }\end{aligned}$ hie mid ēadmēdum in forlēton．

TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS.

(From Elfric's Colloquy, probably prepared, like his Grammar, for the instruction of English youths in Latin. There are two MSS. - one in the British Museum, the other at Oxford. The Oxford MS. has the rubric: Hanc sententiam Latini sermonis olim Alfricus abbas composuit, qui meus fuit magister, sed tamen ego, Elfric Bata, multas postea huic addidi appendices. This is virtually Elfric Bata's sole title to fame. The Old English, like the Latin, is probably of the late tenth century.)

BEDE'S DESCRIPTION OF BRITAIN.

(Eccl. Hist., Bk. I., Chap. I.)

[Elfric testifies to a translation of Bede's History having been made by Alfred, and so does William of Malmesbury; besides, the MS. of the Cambridge University Library twice has this couplet, -

Historicus quondam fecit me Beda latinum, Elfred rex Saxo transtulit ille pius.
On the other hand, it has such undoubted Anglian peculiarities that it has been suggested (by Miller, its latest editor) that " the version may have been executed by Mercian scholars under orders from the king," and that it was possibly made at Lichfield.

The distinction between English idiom and imitation of the Latin should be remarked, wherever possible. Moberly's edition of the Ecclesiastical History, which contains scholarly and interesting notes, may profitably be compared.]

Moberly's Bede, p. 16), but Bede, following Orosius, is no doubt thinking of that between the Tyne and the Solway Frith, which was built by Hadrian (A.d. 120). Severus' wall was built A.D. 207-210.

1 "[This account] is pieced together as an abridgment of Gildas, xi.-xvi.; but the turgidity of his style is chastened, and his faulty grammar in several places corrected" (Moberly, pp. 26, 27).
${ }^{2}$ On the Picts the last edition of Chambers' Encyclopodia remarks: "Four hypotheses have been formed in regard to the language and origin of the Picts. The first, started by Pinkerton and put by Sir Walter Scott into the mouth of the 'Antiquary,' is that they were Teutons, speaking a Gothic dialect ; the second, maintained by Dr. Skene, is that they were Gaelic-speaking Celts; . . . the third, due to Professor Rhys, is that the Picts were nonAryans, whose language was overlaid by loans from Welsh and Irish; and the fourth, held by two of the most eminent Celtic scholars of the day, Professor Windisch and Dr. Whitley Stokes, is that they were Celts, but more nearly allied to the Cymry than to the Gael. . . . The conclusion to which we come is that the Picts, whatever traces they show of a nonAryan racial element, . . . spoke a Celtic language belonging to a branch of Celtic allied to the Cymric, . . . and that this dialect of the Gallo-Cymric stock was a wave of Celtic speech from the continent previous to the Gaulish which held England when Cæsar entered Britain."

${ }^{3} \overline{0}$ wini. An interesting memorial of him was discovered, at the end of the last century, in the village of Haddenham, near Ely. It is a stone which appears to have formed the base of a cross, and on one of its sides is the following inscription:-

& LVCEM. TVAM . OVINO
DA . DEVS . ET . REQVIE
    AMEN.

This is, according to Palgrave, perhaps one of the most venerable monuments of Saxon antiquity. It long served as a horseblock, but is now in the south aisle of Ely Cathedral. Dean Merivale of Ely has suggested that the words are meant for a pentameter line (the $m$ in lucem being elided even before a consonant). For further particulars, see Mayor and Lumby's ed. of Bede, p. 429, and Bright's Early English Church History, p. 239.

From age of man to generation $=$ the people living at one time, mankind; and from this to inhabited earth, the transitions are not violent. The similar changes in the meaning of the Lat. seculum and Gr. кó $\sigma \mu$, especially in Biblical usage, will be found suggestive.

THE DANGERS OF GREATNESS.

(From Wulfstan's Homilies, No. 49.)
[Wulfstan - also known by his Latinized name, Lupus - was Bishop of Worcester and Archbishop of York from 1002 to 1023. This homily is one of those attributed to him, but, according to Napier, with insufficient reason, as a portion of it is found in the Blickling Homilies, the manuscript of which bears the date of 971 .]

${ }^{1}$ See p. 156, n. 12.
${ }^{2}$ This resembles the use of gin in Chaucer, almost as an auxiliary tense-sign, like do in Mod. Eng., the latter not being thus used in OE. In Chaucer it usually occurs as the preterit gan, e.g. in the Clerk's Tale, 392: "til the sonne gan descende." See Lounsbury's History of the English Language. An interesting parallel is to be found in New Testament Greek, as, for example, Acts 1. 1: "The former treatise I made, 0 Theophilus, concerning all that Jesus began ( $\eta \rho \xi a \tau o$ ) both to do and to teach." According to Thayer, however (Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament), there is in its employment always a sense of beginning, in its proper meaning.
${ }^{8}$ Dependent, like feallan, on onginna\%. Give the ind. pret. plur.
${ }^{4}$ It would be interesting to know from what literary source these illustrations are ultimately derived. They remind one of

Shakespeare (Rich. III., 1. 3. 259-260): -
They that stand high have many blasts to shake them;
And if they fall, they dash themselves to pieces.
Cf. also 3 Hen. VI., 5. 2. 11-15. No doubt many Elizabethan parallels could be found; I have noted in Chapman, Byron's Conspiracy, Act 3, Scene 1 (p. 232 of Shepherd's ed.), and Byron's Tragedy, Act 5, Scene 1 (Ib., p. 272). Perhaps the Elizabethans may have derived them from Seneca; cf. the Chorus in Act 4 of the Hippolytus, vv. 1123-1143 ; Hercules Furens 201 ; Edipus 8-11. Seneca may have caught a suggestion from Sophocles, though the parallel is somewhat remote; see the latter's Antigone, vv. 712717, and Horace, C. II. 10.

APOLLONIUS OF TYRE.

[The Old English version of the Romance of Apollonius, from which our extract is taken, belongs, according to Wülker, to the second third of the eleventh century; according to Ebert, to its beginning; and according to Riese, most probably to the tenth. The original story was almost certainly written in Greek, probably in the third century of our era, and by an imitator of Xenophon of Ephesus. This is lost, and is only represented by a Latin version, which may have been made in the same century, and in any case not later than the sixth, by a writer of no great education, who introduced Christian terms and conceptions, added some things, and retrenched others. Over a hundred manuscripts of this Latin versi #nare known, of which twelve are in England. Scarcely any two manuscripts agree, and the discrepancies are often great; still, for convenience, they have been grouped into three main classes. To the third of these, which is not the equal of the other two, the immediate original of our version must have belonged, resembling most nearly a manuscript of the Bodleian Library (Laud H. 39), and, at the next further remove, one of the British Museum (Sloan. 1619).

The popularity of the romance is attested not only by the number and variety of the Latin manuscripts, but no less by the mediæval and subsequent translations into almost every modern language. Thus, for example, there is in Old French a romance of Jourdain de Blaie, the scene being laid in the time of Charlemagne, and the temple of Diana being converted into a nunnery.

An abridgment of the Latin version found its way into the Gesta Romanorum, as No. 153 of that collection. In the twelfth century the story was incorporated into the Pantheon of Godfrey of Viterbo, whence it was turned into English verse by Gower, in his Confessio Amantis (Pauli's edition 3. 284 ff .; Morley's abridgment, in The Carisbrooke Library, pp. 410-431). From Gower it was borrowed by Shakespeare, or whoever was the author of the drama which passes under his name, as the groundwork of Perieles, Prince of Tyre; the name Pericles being perhaps adapted from the Pyrocles of Sidney's Arcadia. The scenes of Pericles which may be compared with our extract are the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 5th of Act II., and the 3d of Act V.

The Old English Apollonius was edited by Thorpe, in 1834, from MS. S. 18. 201 of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and to this edition the student is referred for the spelling and punctuation of the original. It is only a fragment, breaking off in the midst, and recommencing near the end of the tale, as we have indicated below.

Further information will be found in Rohde, Der griechische Roman, Leipzig, 1876; Teuffel, History of Latin Literature, § 489; Singer, Apollonius von Tyrus, Halle, 1895 ; Zupitza's article on the OE. version in Herrig's Archiv 97. 17-35; Warton, History of English Poetry 2. 302-303 ; and Riese's edition of the Latin, which is the standard (Leipzig, 1871), and costs but a trifle.

Besides the Tudor versions, there is an English translation in Thorpe's edition, and another - of course not adhering closely to our text - in Swan's rendering of the Gesta Romanorum (Bohn Library)].

${ }^{1}$ Apollonius, King of Tyre, has fled from the cruelty and treachery of Antiochus, King of Antioch, on a richly freighted vessel, and taken refuge with the citizens of Tarsus. Finding the citizens in extremity, on account of a prevalent famine, he relieves their necessities by liberal gifts, whereupon they erect a statue of him in the market-place. But notwithstanding the gratitude of his beneficiaries, he finds it expedient to leave them, and embarks for hears of the death of King Antiochus, and, with his wife, sets sail for Antioch. There follow the events related in the Shakespearean Pericles, in the main as in Acts III., IV., and V., though with not a few differences. The infant daughter has grown up, and, after a variety of experiences, has been restored to Apollonius. His queen is priestess of Diana of Ephesus, and thither he proceeds, being warned by an angel in a dream to make that, instead of Tarsus, his next goal. At this point the OE. fragment recommences.

THE SIX DAYS' WORK OF CREATION.

(From Elfric's Hexameron.)

[This may serve as a commentary on Selection I., which, it will be remembered, is a translation by Elfric. Of the present work its editor, Norman, says (p. vii): "The treatise which is styled by Hickes in his 'Thesaurus' the 'Hexameron of St. Basil' is by no means a literal translation of the well known work of that father, but is partly original, and partly compiled from that work, and from the commentaries of the Venerable Bede upon Genesis. The author of it, from internal evidence, may be pronounced to be Elfric, as frequent references are made to his homilies, and to his epistles on the Old and New Testament."

Of Basil's (d. 379) delivery of the original Hexameron, there is a brief, but spirited, account in Villemain's Tableau de l'Éloquence Chrétienne au $I V^{e}$ Siècle (p. 116 ff. ), from which we extract the following: "It is more interesting to survey him in the act of instructing the poor inhabitants of Cæsarea, elevating them to God by the contemplation of nature, and explaining to them the miracles of creation in discourses where the science of the orator who had been trained at Athens is concealed under a persuasive and popular simplicity. Such is the subject of the homilies which bear the name of Hexameron. Together with the errors in natural philosophy which are common to all antiquity, they contain many correct views, and descriptions at once felicitous and true."]

Eostre) was, as Bede tells us, the name of a goddess whose festival was celebrated at the vernal equinox ; it is a derivative of east (east, cognate with Skr. ushās, dawn), and this indicates that she was originally a goddess of the dawn. Bede adds that the passover-tide was so called, "Consueto antiquæ observationis vocabulo gaudia novæ solemnitatis vocantes,"

XIV.  THE SONG OF THE GLEEMAN.

(Beowulf 89-100.)
[Hrothgar, King of the Danes, builds a spacious hall for the assembly of his retainers. There, from time to time, they are entertained by minstrelsy, - sometimes that of a professional gleeman, and sometimes improvised by one of the warriors, or even by the king himself (cf. Iliad 9. 185-189).

In reading the poetry, the paragraph of the Preface relating to the retention of MS. forms should be borne in mind.]

${ }^{1}$ For the accord of harp and voice see p. 175, 1.11, and Odyssey 8. 266: "Now as the minstrel touched the lyre, he lifted up his voice in sweet song."
${ }^{2}$ Thorkelin, the first editor of Beowulf, already noticed the resemblance between this song and that of Iopas in Virgil (AEn. 1. 740-747), though this is Christianized in its execution. An earlier sketch of the same conception was that in the Georgics (2. 475-482), of which Coning-ton says: "Virgil probably had in his mind here not only Lucretius and the Greek didactic poets, such as Xenophanes, Empedocles and Aratus, but the legendary reputation of the poetic teachers of early Greece, such as Orpheus and Musæus. His own notion of an ancient bard is that of a hierophant of nature. . . . The conception belongs not to Augustan Rome, but to primitive Greece, where science was theological and imaginative, and verse the natural vehicle of all knowledge and thought. It had, however, been partially realized by Lucretius, ' whose example exercised a strong influence on Virgil's imagination." As to the possibility of an Old English poet's being familiar with Virgil, compare the testimony of Bede (Eccl. Hist. 4. 2) .concerning the pupils of Theodore and Hadrian: "Usque hodie supersunt de eorum discipulis qui Latinam Græcamque linguam æque ut propriam, in qua nati sunt, norunt."

${ }^{7}$ Here ends the song. The rest refers to Hrothgar's retainers.

XV.

THE ROUT OF THE ASSYRIANS.

(From the Judith.)
[Of this extract Ten Brink has said (Early English Literature): "To a lucid, well-constructed narrative are joined epic profusion, vigor, and animation. In the highest degree effective is the portrayal of Judith's return to Bethulia, of the warlike advance of the Hebrews, of the surprise of the Assyrian camp, the terror of the Assyrian nobles, who dare not disturb their lord in his rest, and finally of the disbandment and flight of the heathen host."

The portion here given omits the discovery of Holofernes' dead body by the Assyrians. It is based upon the Apocryphal book of Judith, the first few verses of the fifteenth chapter, especially verses $2,5,7$, and 11. For further particulars see my edition of the Judith.

Attention is called to the device employed for indicating parallel or synonymous expressions, which have constituted one of the chief difficulties of OE. poetry. The device consists in the enclosure between reference-letters of the parallel expressions, the synonyms being designated by the same letters. For an example, see p. 204, 11. 5-7.]

SELECTIONS FROM THE ANDREAS.

[The Andreas is a poem of about 1722 lines (the numbering differs according to the edition). Jacob Grimm considered it and the Elene to be (Preface to his edition, p. iv) "the most ancient and instructive productions of Old English poetry, next to the Beowulf." With the help of Thilo, Grimm discovered (pp. xvi ff.) its source to be the Acts of Andrew and Matthew, written in Greek, and now published in Tischendorf's Acta Apostolorum Apocmpha, pp. 132-166. Besides this poem, there is a prose version which may be profitably consulted, and which is to be found in Bright's valuable Anylo-Saxen Reader, pp. 113-128. It is believed by many schmits that both these versions were made from a Latin translation of the Greek original, but this cannot be said to have been demonstrated, at least for the poem. The Greek original is discussed at length by Lipsius, Die apokryphen Apostelgeschichten und Apostellegenden, pp. 546 ff. A portion of the Greek, corresponding to lines 235-349, is printed in Appendix III.

According to Lipsius, the scene of the poem is the northern coast of the Black Sea; though the Old English poet had Africa in mind (cf. 1. 198), perhaps because the region about Colchis had by some been called the inner or second Ethiopia. The Marmedonia (1.30) or Mermedonia of our text has been identified with Myrmecium, Gr. M $\nu \rho \mu \dot{\eta} \kappa \iota о$, near the modern Yenikale, in the Crimea. Here are supposed to have dwelt the Cimmerians of Homer, and here, in classic times, were settled various Scythian tribes. Of the Tauri (Crimea was anciently the Tauric Chersonesus) Herodotus says (4. 103): "They sacrifice to the virgin all who suffer shipwreck, and any Greeks they meet with driven on their coasts, in the following manner: having performed the preparatory ceremonies, they strike the head with a club; some say they throw the body down from a precipice. . . . The Tauri themselves say that this deity to whom they sacrifice is Iphigenia, daughter of Agamemnon" (cf. Euripides' Iphigenia in Tauris, and Goethe's Iphigenie). This reputation clung to the region, for Tertullian says (Adv. Marcionem 1.1): "Pontum ferocissimas gentes inhabitare, parentum cadavera cum pecudibus cæsa convivio convorantes." Nor was the evil fame of the district diminished by the fact that Huns were settled here from the fourth to the sixth century, then Goths, and afterward Tartars.

The story of the poem, up to the beginning of our extract, is briefly this: St. Matthew was in imminent danger among the Mermedonians, a race of cannibals. In this extremity God appears to Andrew, and exhorts him to go to Matthew's assistance, which, after some reluctance, he prepares to do.

Bits of translation and interesting comments (not always correct), embracing much of our extract, are given by Brooke, Hist. Early Eng. Lit. pp. 169 ff., 413 ff .]

${ }^{3}$ Sweet (Engl. The gās- would correspond to Old Norse geisa, to chafe, rage; the -ric as in Ger. wiiterich; so that gāsric would $=$ the rager.

${ }^{3}$ There is no hint of any extraordinary commotion, much less of a storm, in the original. Of all this long description there is nothing except, "They were troubled because of the sea." Brooke says (p. 416): "The storm is now described in words that come, one after another, short, heavy, and springing, like the blows of the waves, and the gusts of wind. We know as we read that the writer had seen the thing."

${ }^{5}$ Part of Baskervill's note, in his edition, is: "w厌do gewætte, the wet weeds (sails); wet with waters, Kemble; waves swelled, Grein; replebatur aquis, vadum madefiebat, Grimm ; w̄̄̈do gewrette is in apposition with strengas." Wædo (with short æ) might be nom. (acc.) plur. of wæd, sea. But the phrase is obscure.
${ }^{6}$ A peculiar use of standan, to indicate motion rather than rest. In Mod. Eng. this general sense is represented by phrases like 'stand back,' 'stand off from shore,' 'stand up,' 'stand out,' etc. In OE. poetry, standan is frequently used with ege or egesa (similarly in ON.); thus in Ps. 104. 33 (105. 38), cecidit timor corum super eos: him p̄̄er egesa . . . stōd, where the King James version has, the fear of them fell upon them. The transformation of this idiom into stand in awe of is interesting. Note that the dative is still retained in this quotation, of about A.D. 1380 (Sir Ferumbras 408): "Of whame men stondeð aye" [i.e. awe]. However, men being eventually understood as nom. in such a sentence as the last (cf. Towneley Mysteries, 305 [ab. 1460]: "I stand great aghe "), in was supplied before awe, as in this from Lydgate (ab. 1413): "Of theyre lord and god to stande in awen." See New Eng. Dict. 8.v. awe. The Scandinavian influence in Middle English confirmed the idiom, and assisted in its development.

${ }^{1}$ Adv. (76).

${ }^{2}$ In Carlyle's Past and Present (Bk. 3, Chap. 10) occurs this piece of etymologizing: " Ironcutter, at the end of the campaign, did not turn off his thousand fighters, but said to them : 'Noble fighters, this is the land we have gained; be I Lord in it, - what we will call Law-ward, maintainer and keeper of Heaven's Laws: be I Lawward, or in brief orthoepy Lord in it, and be ye Loyal Men around me in it.'" Again (Chap. 13): "If no pious Law-ward would remember it, always some pious Lady ('Hlaf-dig,' Benefactress, 'Loaf-giveress,' they say she is, blessings on her beautiful heart !) was there." So Ruskin, in Sesame and Lilies (Of Queens' Gardens): "Lady means 'breadgiver' or 'loaf-giver,' and Lord means 'maintainer of laws.' "

${ }^{9}$ To this kenning there are several analogies in Greek and Latin. Thus Ulysses is referred to as 'great glory of the Achaians,' Il. 9. 673, and elsewhere; the bull is called the 'glory of the herd' by Ovid (A. A. 1. 290); and decus is used by Virgil(?) almost exactly as here,-decus Asterice (Cul. 15) for decens or pulchra Asteria, like cyninga wuldor for wuldorlic cyning. An interesting mediæval parallel is the line by Hilary, a disciple of Abelard, and probably an Englishman, cited by Lenient, La Satire en France au Moyen Age, p. 20, note: "Papa summus, paparum gloria." So he apostrophizes a girl with "Ave, splendor puellarum" (Wright, Biog. Brit. Lit., Anglo-Norman Period, p. 93).

APPENDIX II.

CORRESPONDENCES OF OLD ENGLISH AND MODERN GERMAN VOWELS.

Only a selection of the more regular correspondences is here given. The student must not be surprised at the occurrence of correspondences which he cannot reconcile with these; profounder study will usually show the reason for the discrepancy. The great majority of instances, however, will be found to fall under the following heads. The graphic representations of the vowels, not their sounds, is all that is here considered, but this will be found of much assistance in tracing and fixing cognates.

\begin{aligned}
& \text { Old English Short Vowels and Diphthongs. } \\
& \text { OE. a : Ger. a . . . . . . . . . . badian : baden. } \\
& \text { OE. æ : Ger. a . . . . . . . . cræft : Kraft. } \\
& \text { Sometimes OE. æ : Ger. e . . hærfest : Herbst. } \\
& \text { OE. e : Ger. e. . . . . . . . . . brecan : brechen. } \\
& \text { OE. e : Ger. e (ee) . . . . . . . będd : Bett; hęre : Heer. } \\
& \text { OE. i : Ger. i . . . . . . . . . fise : Fisch. } \\
& \text { OE. o : Ger. o . . . . . . . . . lof : Lob. } \\
& \text { OE. u : Ger. u . . . . . . . . burg : Burg. } \\
& \text { OE. y : Ger. ü . . . . . . . . . fyllan : fuillen. } \\
& \text { Sometimes OE. y : Ger. u . . hyldu : Huld. } \\
& \text { OE. ea }(20,21) \text { : Ger. a . . . . hearpe : Harfe. } \\
& \text { OE. eo }(20,21): \text { Ger. e . . . . . eorðe : Erde. } \end{aligned}
$$

Old English Long Vowels and Diphthongs.
OE. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}:$ Ger. ei . . . . . . . . . . . . . . brād : breit.
Sometimes OE. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ : Ger. e (ee) . . . $\overline{\mathbf{a}} \mathbf{r}$ : Ehre; sāwol : Seele.
OE. $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$ : Ger. ei. . . . . . . . . . . . . . h̄̄I : Heil.
OE. $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ : Ger. î . . . . . . . . . . . . . grēne : grün.
OE. ī:Ger. ei . . . . . . . . . . . . . idel : eitel.
OE. $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ : Ger. u . . . . . . . . . . . . fōt : Fuss.
OE. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}:$ Ger. au . . . . . . . . . . . hūs : Haus.

Before $\mathbf{h}$, and dental consonants
(6), OE. ēa: Ger. o . . . . . . dēã' : Tod.

OE. ēo : Ger. ie . . . . . . . . . . . . dēor : Tier.
In tracing back the history of these vowels, many correspondences become clearer. Thus, take OE. $\overline{\boldsymbol{o}}$ : Ger. $u$. The Old High German correlative of $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ is uo, that is, the one long vowel is diphthongized into two short ones. Of these it is the $u$ which has survived. If now we consider that the $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut of $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ is $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$, and of Ger. $u$ is $u$, we shall better understand such a pair as grēne: grün.

It should be observed that Ger. ei corresponds to OE. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}, \overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$, and $\overline{\mathbf{1}}$, and Ger. au to OE. $\overline{\mathbf{u}}$ and $\overline{\mathbf{e} a}$; similarly Ger. o to OE. o and ēa, Ger. $u$ to OE. u and $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$, etc. Note, too, that the sound of the vowel in Ger. eitel, Haus, corresponds precisely to the Mod. Eng. sound into which the OE. vowels of idel, hūs, have respectively developed.

See Kluge, under Dictionaries, p. 241.

APPENDIX III.

ANDREW'S NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE STEERSMAN.

[This extract from the Greek is found on pp. 136-138 of Tischendorf's Acta Apostolorum Apocrypha, and corresponds to lines 235-349 of the Old English Andreas.]

Then Andrew arose early, and went to the sea with his disciples, and, when he had gone down to the sea-shore, he saw a little boat, and in the boat three men sitting. For the Lord had prepared a ship by his own power, and he himself was as it were a steersman in the ship; and he brought two angels whom he made to seem as men, and they were seated in the ship. Andrew, therefore, when he saw the ship and the three men in it, rejoiced with very great joy, and, coming to them, said, Whither go ye, brethren, with this little ship? And the Lord answered and said unto him, We are journeying into the country of the man-eaters. Now Andrew, when he saw Jesus, av̉roîs 'Avé $\lambda \theta a \tau \epsilon$.

 knew him not, for Jesus was hiding his godhead, and appearing to Andrew as a steersman. Jesus hearing Andrew say, I also am going to the country of the man-eaters, saith unto him, Every one fleeth from that city, and why go ye thither? Andrew answered and said, We have a certain little business to perform there, and must needs finish it; if thou canst, do us this kinduess to carry us to the country of the man-eaters, to which ye also are bound. Jesus answered and said unto them, Come.

And Andrew said, I will make known to thee somewhat, young man, before we enter into thy ship. Jesus said, Say what thou wilt. Then Andrew said unto him, We have no passage-money to give thee, neither have we bread for food. Jesus answered and said unto him, Why then do ye depart, seeing that ye neither give us passage-money nor have bread for food? Andrew said unto Jesus, Hearken, brother; think not that because of arrogance we give thee not our passage-money, since we are disciples of the good God, our Lord Jesus Christ. For he chose us, the twelve, and gave us this commandment, saying, As ye go to preach, carry neither money on the way, neither bread, nor scrip, nor shoes, nor staff, nor two coats. If, therefore, thou wilt do us this kindness, brother, tell us plainly; if thou wilt not, declare it unto us, and we will go and seek for ourselves another ship. Jesus answered and said unto Andrew, If this is the commandment which ye have received and do keep, enter with all joy into my ship; for verily I had rather that ye, the disciples of him who is called Jesus, should enter into my ship, than those who give me gold and silver; for I an certainly worthy that the apostle of the Lord should enter into my ship. Then Andrew answered and said, Agree with me, brother, and the Lord give thee glory and honor. And Andrew entered into the ship with his disciples.

APPENDIX IV.

SPECIMENS OF THE DIALECTS.

The two best sources of information on the OE. dialects are Sievers' OE. Grammar and Prof. E. M. Brown's work on Mercian. The latter is in two parts, - (Part I.) Die Sprache der Rushworth Glossen (Göttingen, 1891), comprising the vowels, and (Part II.) The Language of the Rushworth Gloss (Göttingen, 1892), comprising a continuation of the vowels, the consonants, and inflection.

In some respects the non-West Saxon dialects agree. These common features, so far as they relate to the vowels, have been signalized by Sievers, and are here extracted from $\S 150$ of my edition of his Grammar:-

1. In place of the West Saxon $\overline{\mathbf{x}}=$ Germ. $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$, West Germ. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$, stands the vowel $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$.
2. The WS. ie, ie is wanting, and hence the same is true of the unstable $\mathbf{y}, \overline{\mathbf{y}}$ (i, $\mathbf{i})$ (19).
3. The sounds ea, eo (io), as well as their corresponding long diphthongs, are not so accurately discriminated as in WS. In Northumbrian especially there is great confusion between ea and eo. Kentish has a preference for ia and io, the former standing as well for WS. ea as for eo.
4. The sound oe is of more extensive occurrence.

I. Northumbrian.

1. Cædmon's Hymn.

According to Sweet (Oldest English Texts, p. 148), "The hymn of Cædmon is written at the top of the page [i.e. in the famous Moore MS. of Bede] in a smaller hand than that of the List of Kings which follows it. It is not impossible that the hymn may have been written later than the List [which, according to Sweet, was written 'most probably in 737 '], to fill the blank space. But the hand is evidently contemporary."

The ae is not always joined into a digraph, and the signs of length and of $\mathbf{i}$-umlaut (e) are wanting. These have been supplied, together with the punctuation and the division into lines; in other respects the manuscript has been followed.

The translation of the Hymn, as given by Bede (Hist. Eccl. IV. 24), is as follows, though it should be observed that Bede adds, "Hic est sensus, non autem ordo ipse verborum quæ dormiens ille canebat":
"Nunc laudare debemus auctorem regni cælestis, potentiam creatoris et consilium illius, facta patris gloriæ, quomodo ille, cum sit æternus deus, omnium miraculorum auctor extitit; qui primo filiis hominum cælum pro culmine tecti, dehinc terram custos humani generis omnipotens creavit."

With reference to the words, "heben til hrōfe," it is interesting that Alcuin (Anglia VII. 7) has, "ut primum Creator mundum quasi domum præpararet, et post introduceret habitatorem, id est, dominum domus";
cf. "lacunar, hūshefen, oдде heofenhrōf" (WülkerWright, Vocabularies, 432. 8).

Variations from the EWS. norm are : -

1. Final -æs instead of -es:-ricæes, metudæs, -cynnæs.
2. Final -i for -e: mæcti, éci.
3. Final-æ for -e: āstęlidæ, tīadæ.
4. Final -æn, -en for -on: hefæn-, heben.
5. Final -un for -on: scylun.
6. Final -un for -an: middun-.
7. Final -ur for -er: fadur.
8. Final -ur for -or: wuldur-
9. Final -ud for -od: metud-
10. Final -in for -en: dryctin.
11. Final -ist for -est: $\overline{\text { ex}}$ rist.
12. Final -u for -an: foldu.
13. Final -eg for -ig: hāleg.
14. Final -en for -end: sceppen.
15. $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ for ea (æ): āll-, uārd, bārnum.
16. e for eo: uerc, heben, hefæn-, metud-.
17. y for u: scylun.
18. ę for $\mathbf{a}, \mathbf{Q}$ : ęnd.
19. elli for eal: āstęlidæ.
20. $\bar{x}$ for ie: $\bar{x} l d a$.
21. æ, e, ę for i, ie: mæcti,-mectig, scępen.
22. īa for êo: tīadæ.
23. a for æ: -fadur.
24. $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ for $\overline{\mathbf{a}}:$ suē.
25. $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ for $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ ( $\overline{\mathbf{o}}$ ): scōp.
26. gi- for ge-: gihuæs.
27. d for (b): -gidanc.
28. th for $\boldsymbol{y}(\mathbf{p})$ : thā.
29. et for ht: dryctin, mæcti, -mectig.
30. $\mathbf{b}$ for $\mathbf{f}$ : heben.
31. til for tō.

Most of the foregoing variations are due either to the age of the document, or are common to at least two of the non-West Saxon dialects. The only ones that seem peculiarly Northumbrian are 17, 31, and possibly 12. Of the rest, 16 and 25 do not agree with later Northumbrian (Lind.), and 22 looks not unlike Kentish. But 17 has that palatalization of $\mathbf{u}$ by preceding se which we find in scyūr, -scȳade, scyldor, scyniga, scuia (ui as in druige for drȳge), and even shȳa (WS. scūa), of the Lind. Gospels. Til, which in Old Norse replaces OE. tō, is found here and in Lind. Matt. 26. 31, besides being read in the Runic inscription on the Ruthwell Cross. Foldu resembles the eorסu, -o of Lind. Matt. 15. 35, 27. 45, etc., which is the regular form in these Glosses.

The Hymn is as follows:--
Nū scylun hęrgan hefænrīcæs uārd, metudæs mæcti ęnd his môdgidanc, uerc uuldurfadur; suē hē uundra gihuæs, ēci dryctin, ōr āstęlidæ.

2. Bede's Death Song.

Of this Sweet says: "Preserved in the St. Gall MS. 254, of the ninth century, in the usual continental minuscule hand, evidently an accurate copy of an Old Northumbrian original."

As translated by Cuthbert, his pupil, it runs:-
"Ante necessarium exitum prudentior quam opus fuerit nemo existit, ad cogitandum videlicet, antequam hinc profiscatur anima, quid boni vel mali egerit, qualiter post exitum judicanda fuerit."

Its variations from EWS. are:-

1. It has some of the peculiarities of I. 1, such as (1) gōdæs, yflæs,
(2) ni, (3) -færæ, -hycggannæ, -iqngæ, gāstæ, uueorthæ, (8) -snottur-, (15) thärf, (28) there, uuiurthit, thQnc-, than, thārf, æththa, dēoth-, uueorthæ.
2. Final -a for -e: æbpa.
3. Final -it for -eđ' (cf. 35): uuiurthit.
4. Final -id for -ed : dōemid.
5. ēi for $\overline{\mathrm{i}}$ : nēid-.
6. $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ for $\overline{\boldsymbol{x}}$ : thēre.
7. iu for eo (ie): uuiurthit.
8. ēo for ēa: dèoth-.
9. æ for $\mathbf{o}$ : æththa.
10. $\overline{\boldsymbol{\kappa}}$ for $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ : d $\overline{\boldsymbol{e}} \mathrm{mid}$.
11. hin- (otherwise almost always poetical).
12. cgg for eg: -hycggannæ.
13. i for $g$ (ge): -iongæ.

Of the foregoing only 8 and 13 are unmistakably Northumbrian. With dēoth- may be compared ēoro, Lind. Lk., p. 8, 1. 15 (cf. Jn. 18. 26); èostro, Lk. 22. 1, etc. (15); ēoचe, Matt. 27. 64, Lk. 14. 8 (cf. Matt. 10. 15) ; ēoung, Matt., p. 22, 1. 15. The iqng (for geng $<$ gang) is simply an attempt to express the palatal $\mathbf{g}$ (ge); geong occurs frequently in the Lindisfarne Gospels, eight times uncompounded. Rushworth has iarw-, but not iqng (p. 253, note 10). At least Anglian (North. Merc.) is (9) æрра; as eøда (ерра) it occurs in Rush. Matt. 5. 18, and in the Riddles ascribed to Cynewulf (44. 17).

The text is:-

> Fore thēre nēidfæræ n̄̄nig ni uuiurthit thǫnesnotturra than him thārf sīe, tō ymbhycggannæ $\overline{\dddot{x}} \mathrm{r}$ his hiniongæ huæt his gāstæ gōdæs æththa yflæs 5 æfter dēothdæge dळ̄mid uueorthæ.

3. The Day of Judgment.

The text is taken from Skeat's edition of Matthew. As far as practicable the readings have been conformed to the norms of the Lindisfarne Gospels (ca. 950). But as there is often great variation in the spelling and endings of the same word, normalizing has not been attempted in all cases. Where changes have been made, the MS. reading is given in a note. The equivalent for Lat. et is nearly always represented by a contraction, as is frequently that for vel, aut; these have been rendered by the usual words, and, odre. The second of two alternative glosses has been enclosed in square brackets, and so has occasionally a superfluous word.

Variations from EWS. are (only the more important are registered):-

1. Of I. 1: (5, but not regularly, see foot-notes), (15) ālle, -sāldes, -sāldon, (21) mæht, (23) fadores (cf. 24, sū̄); of I. 2: (10) geblōedsad.
2. Loss of final -n: eatta, drinca, befora, $\quad$ equde.
3. Uncontracted ind. pres. 3 sing. (cf. I. 2. 3): sittes, scēades, sętter', etc.
4. Plurals in -as (s), as well as -aซ: bȳas, āgnigas, gaas.
5. Change of gender: -mæhtes.
6. Plural of long neuters in -o: cynno.
7. Plural of adjectives and past participles in -o: sṑffesto, āwœergedo.
8. Weak plurals in -o: ilco.
9. Shortened plurals of verbs in -o, instead of e: sōhto.
10. ea (representing eo) for e: eatta.
11. $\boldsymbol{\infty}$ for $\mathbf{e}$ after $\mathbf{w}$ (denoted by $\mathbf{u}$ ): cuœ厄゙as.
12. $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ for $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{a}$ before palatals: $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathbf{c}$.
13. $\overline{\mathbf{e}} \mathrm{g}$ for $\overline{\mathrm{a}} \mathbf{w}$ : sēgon.
14. ē for $\mathbf{y}$ : dēdon.
15. $\mathbf{i}$ for $\mathbf{y}$ before palatals: drihten.
16. Irregular umlaut: cymmeł.
17. Irregular gemination: eatta, cymme ${ }^{\text {d }}$, untrymmig.
18. eg for ce: ticgen-.
19. cg for $\mathbf{g}$ : hyncg-.
20. d for $\mathbf{t}$ (d original): geblöedsad.
21. for $t$ : seđel.
22. W for d: mid'
23. -ig for -ing : cynig.
24. Inorganic initial $\mathbf{h}$ : hriordadon.
25. Loss of final -e: rīc.
26. The form bi§on.
27. The form hìa.

Under the Northumbrian is printed the corresponding passage from the Vulgate, with collations of the Latin versions on which the Lindisfarne and Rushworth glosses are respectively based. The text is : -

II. Mercian.

Mercian has been thus characterized by Brown (ut supra, Part I., p. 81, with which should be compared his Part II., p. 91): -
"There is naturally much general agreement with Northumbrian, since both are Anglian. Variations from North. are in some cases approximations to WS., but not in all. In certain respects Mercian stands quite by itself; in particular -
"1. OE. stable e [i.e. not e] is usually retained in Mercian, yet is more or less frequently changed to æ.
"2. The o-umlaut of a scarcely occurs in WS., and not at all in either Kentish or Northumbrian, but is well developed in Mercian.
" 3 . The $\mathbf{u}$-, $\mathbf{o}$-umlaut of $\mathbf{e}$ to $\mathbf{e o}$, and of $\mathbf{i}$ to $\mathbf{i o}$, eo, occurs at least more regularly in Mercian than in WS. and the other dialects.
"It is true that these peculiarities give no sharp outlines to Mercian, yet they sufficiently characterize it as a dialect, and not merely as Northumbrian modified by West Saxon scribes, or the reverse."

1. The Day of Judgment.

The text is from Skeat's edition of Matthew, normalized like the last. There is a difference of opinion about the date of the Gloss. Skeat says (ed. of Mark, p. xii) that it may be referred to the latter half of the tenth century, Brown (Part I., p. 83) would date it just before the decay of Latin studies to which Alfred testifies; the latter also infers that its origin was not near the Kentish border. The phonological and inflectional points of difference from both West Saxon and Northumbrian should be noted.

The passage is as follows:-
And ${ }^{1}$ mid-py ${ }^{2}$ cymep ponne Sunu ${ }^{3}$ Monnes in $\begin{aligned} \text { rymme }\end{aligned}$ his, and alle ${ }^{4}$ ęnglas mið hine, ponne ${ }^{5}$ gesitep ${ }^{6}$ on sedle ${ }^{7}$ his prymmes. And gesomnade ${ }^{8}$ bēod beforan him ālle ${ }^{4}$

2. Psalm XX. (XXI.)

The Psalm is taken from the Vespasian Psalter as printed in Sweet's Oldest English Texts. This was formerly regarded as Kentish, and even yet Brown （Part I．，p．82）is inclined to think that its Mercian is that of the region adjoining Kent．Sweet（p．184） refers the gloss to the first half of the ninth century． The forms are less varied than in the last．The Latin is the Vulgate version，collated with that on which the gloss is based．

III. Kentish.

The preference for the e-sound (both long and short) is, according to Zupitza (Haupt's Zeitsehrift, XXI. 4), characteristic of the Kentish dialect. Sievers remarks (§ 154) that a distinctive characteristic of Kentish is the substitution of $\mathbf{e}, \overline{\mathbf{e}}$, for $\mathbf{y}, \overline{\mathbf{y}}$, and to some extent the converse.

In our reproduction of the following pieces, e is employed only where it is found in the MSS., in order to avoid confusion between the theoretical and the MS. ę.

1. Lufa's Confirmation of her Bequest.

The will of which this is the concluding portion dates from 832. It is printed by Sweet in his Oldest English Texts, pp. 446-447, and by Earle, Land Charters, pp. 165-166. Earle adds : "This piece is given in Thorpe's Analecta as a specimen of East Anglian; but Kemble remarked that Mundlingham is in Kent."

Note the e ( $\overline{\mathbf{c}}$ ) for $\boldsymbol{x}(\overline{\boldsymbol{x}})$, ia (ia) for eo ( $\overline{\mathbf{c}} \mathbf{0}$ ); b for $\mathbf{f}$ is of course not peculiar to Kentish (I. 1. 30).

The text is as follows:-
I Ic Luba, ēaðmōd Godes $\begin{gathered}\text { īwen, } \\ \text { đās forecwedenan gōd, }\end{gathered}$ and rās elmessan, gesette and gefestnie, ob mīnem erfelande et Mundlinghām, ðēm hiium tō Crīstes cirican; and ic bidde, and an Godes libgendes naman bebīade, ð $\overline{\ngtr m}$

※ Lufe pincggewrit.

2. The Kentish Hymn.

The Hymn is No. 8 of Grein's Bibliothek (II. 290291). The text is conformed to that of Kluge in his Lesebuch, pp. 111-112.

To be noted are the io, ia for eo (hiofen, hiafen), and especially the e for $\mathbf{y}$ (senna, gefelled), and $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ for $\overline{\mathbf{y}}$ (̄̄lēs, gerēna). Standard West Saxon vowels are also found, and perhaps indicate a West Saxon scribe.

With respect to consonants, the omission of the middle one of three is noted by Zupitza as characteristic (ænlum). The loss of final d (walden) is found elsewhere in Kentish (Zupitza, p. 11); but see also I. 1. 14. Ne (nge, ncg) for ng (cyninc, cyninge; ef. pincg-, p. 257, l. 12) is another mark (Zupitza, p. 13).

The Hymn is as follows:-

APPENDIX V.

I-UMLAUT ILLUSTRATED FROM GOTHIC.

The earliest Germanic language represented by existing specimens is the Gothic. Much the most considerable part of these specimens consists of fragments of a translation of the Bible, or rather of the Bible with the exception of the Books of Kings, made by Wulfila (less correctly, Ulphilas), a Goth of the fourth century. While it would be a serious error to regard Gothic as the parent of the other Germanic tongues, it is undoubtedly true that in many respects it most nearly represents what we may conceive to have been the character of the Primitive Germanic language. In particular, the original vowels of stem-endings and inflectional terminations are often extant in Gothic, while by the time of Old English they are either lost, or exist in a modified form.

From what has been said, it is manifest that a comparison of Gothic forms with those of Old English is often very instructive. The phenomenon known as i-umlaut, for example, becomes much more intelligible through such a comparison, as a few illustrations will render evident.

In the revised version of 2 Cor. 10.12 , the marginal reading is, "For we are not bold to judge ourselves among . . . certain of them that commend themselves." The Gothic has, "Unte ni gadaursum dōmjan unsis silbans," etc. Here the English word judge is represented by the Gothic dōmjan (pronounced dōmyan), to which corresponds the OE. dēman. Again, for OE. sēe(e)an (114), nęrian (116), the Gothic has sökjan, nasjan (s changing to $\mathbf{r}$ ), as in Lk. 19. 10: "Qam auk sunus mans sökjan jah nasjan pans fralusanans."

According to 103, the ind. pres. 3 sing. of forbēodan is forbiet or forbiett. The corresponding Gothic form occurs in Lk. 8. 25: "Hwas siai sa, ei jah windam faurbiudib jah watnam?" (Who then is this, that he commandeth even the winds and the water(s)?) The stem of the Gothic verb faurbiudib is biud-, which in OE. is represented by bēod-. Umlaut is caused by the $-i$ - of the ending $-i p$, which is sometimes retained in OE. as -(e) $\boldsymbol{x}$, but frequently disappears, according to 23 and 34. Similarly Gothic fraliusis is represented in OE. by forliest, as in Lk. 15. 8, where, for the "if she lose one piece " of the English, the Gothic has, " jabai fraliusip drakmin ainamma." Again, take the OE. hātan, of which the ind. pres. 3 sing. is hēt $(\mathbf{t})$. Here the Gothic infinitive is haitan, and the ind. pres. 3 sing. haitib. Thus, in Lk. 15. 9, "gahaitip frijondjos" (calleth together her friends).

In Mk. 1. 16, where our version has net, the OE. has nett, and the Gothic nati: "wairpandans nati in marein." The doubling of $\mathbf{t}$ is to be accounted for according to 36, as the Gothic stem-ending was $-j a$. For OE. cynn the Gothic has kuni, as in Mk. 8. 12: "Hwa pata kuni taikn sōkeip?" (What would be the OE. representatives of taikn and sōkeip?) In Mk. 7. 35, where the OE. has "tungan bęnd," the Gothic has "bandi tuggons."

Many more illustrations might be given, but these will no doubt suffice to render the principle clear.

VOCABULARY.

VOCABULARY.

[The vowel æ follows ad, and $\boldsymbol{f}$ follows $\mathbf{t}$. The main or typical forms of words are those of Early West Saxon, the dialectic or late forms of the poetry and of Appendix IV. being referred to that as the standard. Actual forms, when different from the type, are enclosed in parenthesis. Figures in parenthesis refer to paragraphs (and subdivisions) of the Grammar. Semicolons are employed to separate different groups of meanings; definitions separated by commas are more nearly synonymous. The sign $<$ indicates derivation from. Modern English words cited in brackets, and not preceded by cf., are direct derivatives; cognates thus cited are directly derived from the common ancestral form; where the relationship is more remote, or only a part of the word corresponds, cf. precedes. Old English words preceded by cf. or see are parallel or related forms. Direct derivatives included among the definitions are not repeated in brackets. The asterisk before a word indicates a theoretical form; for the manner in which such are framed see my Phonological Investigation of Old English (Ginn \& Co.). The ending -lic(e) is assigned to adjectives and adverbs employed in the poetry ; -lic(e) to those in prose.]

idelnes (51. 5), idleness, indolence.
ides (51.b), maid, nymph, woman. [From the Norse mythology we learn that this Germanic word signified 'demi-goddess,' or perhaps 'female guardian-angel,' as well as 'maid'; it was applied to giantesses and Norns, to heroic women, resembling the Valkyries, such as Brunhild and Gudrun, and to goddesses, such as Freyja. Cf. the remarks of Tacitus, Germania 8: "They even believe that the sex has a certain sanctity and prescience, and they do not despise their counsels, or make light of their answers. In Vespasian's days we saw Veleda, long regarded by many as a divinity."]

EDMUND C. STEDMAN, Author of "Victorian Poets," "Poets of America," "The Nature and Elements of Poetry," etc.:
More than once of late, when asked to name, for some friend or correspondent, a course of reading upon the spirit and structure of Poetry, I have at once recommended Professor Albert S. Cook's series, and have been grateful to him for his admirable labors. He could have made no better choice of treatises to edit; and Sidney, Shelley, Addison, Hunt, and Newman have had no better editor - so far as their exquisite essays upon the divine art are concerned. Professor Cook's notes are the fruit of sympathetic taste and liberal scholarship. The books, in fact, are models as handbooks, upon an ideal subject, designed for practical use.

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE METHODS AND MATERIALS OF LITERARY CRITICISM.

By Charles Mills Gayley, Professor of the English Language and Literature in the University of California, and Fred Newton Scott, Junior Professor of Rhetoric in the University of Michigan.

Volume I. THE BASES IN AESTHETICS AND POETICS.

12mo. Cloth. 587 pages. For introduction, $$ 1.25$.

Volume II. LITERARY TYPES.

[In preparation.
Consulting the needs both of special students of criticism and of those who desire a working basis for the critical study of Literature as related to Art, this work aims to cover, in a helpful way, the field of Literary Theory.

The plan of each chapter embraces (1) a discussion of such problems as the topic in hand presents for consideration, (2) a comprehensive bibliography, with critical commentary on each important reference, (3) suggestions for special investigation. Whike the work is not intended to set forth any special system of criticism, being rather a clue to the sources which will acquaint the student with any or all systems, yet some pains has been taken to distinguish, in the commentary, those theories which are thought to rest upon a sound scientific and aesthetic basis.

Following are the subjects of the chapters in Volume I.:

1. Theory of Criticism ; 2. History of Criticism ; 3. Theory of Art ; 4. Development of Art ; 5. Theory of Literature ; 6. Comparative Literature ; 7. Theory of Poetry ; 8. The Historical Study of Poetry ; 9. The Historical Study of Poetics; 10. Principles of Versification. Appendix : Bibliography of Aristotle's Poetics.

The volume contains a full and carefully classified index to authors and works.

The chapters of Volume II. upon Literary Types cover the following subjects :

The Theory and History of the Lyric ; the Theory and History of the Epic; the Theory of Tragedy: - the Dramatic Problem (Conception, Collision, and Catastrophe), the Construction (Ancient and Modern Canons of Unity and Technique), the Effect (Classified theories of the Catharsis) ; the Theory of Comedy; the Historic Development of the Drama; Minor Types of Poetry; Prose and its Artistic Types; the Theory and History of Romance and Novel; Phrases of Literary Development:-Classicism, Romanticism; Realism, Idealism; Modern Literary Movements.
[Volume II. is in preparation.

Outline of the Philosophy of English Literature

By GREENOUGH WHITE, A.M., B.D.,Author of "A Sketch of the Philosophy of A merican Literature."

Part I: The Middle Ages.

12mo. Cloth. vi + 266 pages. Introduction price, $\mathbf{$ 1 . 0 0}$.
The motive of this treatise is to determine the bounds of the great historical divisions of English literature, to discover the salient features, the peculiar characteristics of each epoch, to trace the connection in thought between each, and to view all against a background of European history, literature, and art. It is believed that the causes of historic change, the principles that control the succession of ages, the revolutions of thought, sentiment, and action, are here clearly discriminated; so that in this little book, in a word, a sound philosophy of mediaeval history is suggested.
W. J. Courthope, Professor of Poetry at the University of Oxford: It would be quite impertinent in me to criticise the manner in which the work has been executed, but I may be allowed to express my admiration of the orderly manner in which its very diverse materials are arranged and of the agreeable style in which the narrative is conducted. To accomplish this result in so vast a subject as English literature as a whole is in itself a proof of the most skillful workmanship, and I cannot too strongly express my conviction that this comprehensive survey is based upon sound knowledge and just reasoning.

Edward Dowden, Professor of English, Trinity College, Dublin: It interested me much, and seemed to me something new and needful, not merely a work of erudition, but a contribution towards interpreting the results of erudition - a book not merely of knowledge, but of ideas. . . . Especially on this ground - as an elucidation of knowledge - I value the work. The way in which it keeps the European movement present to the reader's mind, with England as having a part in it, is of great importance.

Edmund Gosse, Author of a "History of English Literature in the Eighteenth Century," etc.: I have read the book with pleasure. It appears to me to deal freshly and brilliantly with the old, worn lines of history.

Leslie Stephen, Author of "Hours in a Library" etc.: The design is good, the style is good, and the matter interesting.
Alois Brandl, Professor of English at the University of Berlin: Whites Buch voll allgemeiner Bildung sich zeigt - . . . drei Viertel [?] der Darstellung gelten politischen oder kontinentalen Verhältnissen. Gefallen hat mir eine Bemerkung uber Chaucers 'gentle pite' und 'pitous joye' (S. 8I-2).

CAIRNS'

INTRODUCTION TO RHETORIC

By WILLIAM B. CAIRNS,Instructor in English in the University of Wisconsin, Author of "Forms of Discourse."

Cloth. 270 pages. For introduction, go cents.
The teaching of formal rhetoric has been emphasized to such an extent that in many schools it forms the major part of the study of English. In such cases rhetoric has been made a final rather than a basal study. One of the sure signs that point to a reaction in favor of briefer studies in formal rhetoric and those earlier in the course is the cordial reception given Dr. Cairns' "Introduction to Rhetoric." This is the briefest and simplest presentation of the subject that has appeared in recent years. It gives reasons for statements frankly and clearly. The pupil is not asked to memorize a mass of facts or rules, or to accept the author's ipse dixit as final. The book has a practical value in its emphasis of invention and style. It is one of the few text-books in rhetoric that aim to assist the pupil in the choice and development of the subject on which he is expected to write. The book is suggestive rather than exhaustive, and is intended for the earlier years of a high-school or academy course.

THE FORMS OF DISCOURSE

With an Introductory Chapter on Style

By WILLIAM B. CAIRNS, A.M., Instructor in Rhetoric in the University of Wisconsin.

12mo. Cloth. 356 pages. For introduction, $1.15,

This text-book, for high schools and colleges, presents the subject of Rhetoric with special emphasis on Invention. The author believes that most courses in elementary rhetoric devote too little time to this part. Style is briefly but completely treated in an introductory chapter, brevity being gained by giving only enough examples to make plain the author's meaning. A student needs to be cautioned regarding the use of slang, and hints as to the relative merits of loose and periodic sentences; but he also needs a training that will help him, in writing on a given subject for a particular occasion, to decide what to say and how to say it.

Narration, Description, Exposition, Argumentation, and Persuasion are fully discussed; and carefully chosen examples of each are given for analysis and special study, thus obviating the need for a separate book of selections.

It is believed that teachers who prefer to illustrate errors and excellences of style from the student's own composition, rather than from stock examples, will find in this work everything necessary for a high-school or elementary college course in Rhetoric. The book may, however, be used, if desired, in connection with one of the many excellent treatises on English Composition or Elementary Rhetoric.

The Beginnings of the ## English Romantic /Tovement

By WILliam lyon Phelps, A.M. (Harvard), Ph.D. (Yale), Instructor in English Literature at Yale University.

12mo. Cloth, viii + 192 pages. Introduction price, $$ 1.00$.

$\tau$HIS book is a study of the germs of English Romanticism between 1725 and 1765 . No other work in this field has ever been published, hence the results given here are all the fruit of first-hand investigation: The book discusses, with abundant references and illustrations, the various causes that brought about the transitions of taste from Classicism to Romanticism - such as the Spenserian revival, the influence of Milton's minor poetry, the love of mediæval life, the revival of ballad literature, the study of Northern mythology, etc. It is believed that this book is a contribution to our knowledge of English literary history ; and it will be especially valuable to advanced classes of students who are interested in the development of literature. The treatment is historical rather than argumentative.

HUDSON'S SHAKESPEARE

For School and Home Use.

By HENRY N. HUDSON, LL.D.,Author of "The Life, Art, and Characters of Shakespeare," Editor of " The Harvard Shakespeare," etc.

Revised and enlarged Editions of twenty-three Plays. Carefully expurgated, with explanatory Notes at the bottom of the page, and critical Notes at the end of each volume. One play in each volume.
Square 16 mo . Varying in size from 128 to 253 pages. Mailing price of each: cloth, 50 cents; paper, 35 cents. Introduction price, cloth, 45 cents; paper, 30 cents. Per set (in box), $$ 10.00$.

Why is Hudson's Shakespeare the standard in a majority of the best schools where the greatest attention is paid to this subject? Because Dr. Hudson was the ablest Shakespearean scholar America has ever known. His introductions to the plays of Shakespeare are well worth the price of the volume. He makes the characters almost living flesh and blood, and creates a great interest on the part of the student and a love for Shakespeare's works, without which no special progress can be made. Whoever can command the interest of the pupil in a great author or his works is the person who renders the greatest service.

The list of plays in Hudson's School Shakespeare is as follows :

> A Midsummer Night's Dream.
> The Merchant of Venice.
> Much Ado about Nothing.
> As You Like It.
> The Tempest.
> King John.
> Richard the Second.
> Richard the Third.

Macbeth.Antony and Cleopatra. Othello.Cymbeline.Coriolanus.Twelfth Night.The Winter's Tale.

C. T. Winchester, Professor of English Literature, Wesleyan University: The notes and comments in the school edition are admirably fitted to the need of the student, removing his difficulties by stimulating his interest and quickening his perception.

Hiram Corson, Professor of English Literature, Cornell University: I consider them altogether excellent. The notes give all the aid needed for an understanding of the text, without waste and distraction of the student's mind. The introductory matter to the several plays is especially worthy of approbation.

> We invite correspondence with all who are interested in the study of Shakespeare in the class-room.
